Summit

Police Aim Gas

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (Reuters) — Students protesting a Western Hemisphere summit conference here barricaded themselves in Montevideo University Tuesday night as police charged them, firing into the air and carrying tear gas grenades.

Some 400 students hurled stones at police, who were reinforced by truckloads of steel-helmeted military police. They surrounded the university — which local law forbids them to enter.

THREE-DAY MEET

The clashes began earlier Tuesday evening as President Johnson and 10 Latin American heads of state arrived for the first full-scale summit meeting of Western Hemisphere leaders. They joined six other leaders already in the resort of Punta del Este, 50 miles from the capital of Montevideo. In all, 19 heads of state were expected for the three-day summit.

Police in riot trucks moved in when the demonstrations started Tuesday morning. Students hurled stones while the police replied with tear gas and night-stick charges. Three demonstrators were reported injured.

What Delay?

Home Grant List At 2,000 Already

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

Two thousand prospective home buyers have already applied for B.C.'s new $500 grant, deputy finance minister G. E. Bryson said Tuesday. And the government has sent out 24,000 application forms, said Mr. Bryson in conversation with Premier Bennett.

The premier invited a press conference to listen to on a telephone conversation with Mr. Bryson after it was suggested that payment of the home-ownership grants was being delayed.

The last session of the legislature passed a bill approving payment of $500 to first-time buyers or builders of homes within B.C. The legislation is retroactive to April 1, 1966.

"The response has been a lot more than I figured," Mr. Bryson told the premier.

He said a backlog of applications was being processed. Inquiries addressed to Victoria government offices have been averaging 1,000 a day since the legislation was passed, he said.

"The first cheques will be going out in a week," said Mr. Bryson. He said there would be about 100 in the initial mailing. One reason they aren't going out faster is that each application must be checked through the land registry office, he added.

Spy Hunt In Norway

OSLO (Reuters) — Norwegian security police are on the trail of a spy ring suspected of transmitting military secrets to Russia for several years from the strategically important NATO area of northern Norway, press reports said Tuesday.

Mrs. Vanier Council First

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Pauline Vanier was sworn in Tuesday as a member of the Privy Council of Canada on the eve of her departure from the capital.

The honor, which was the first ever to be conferred on a Canadian woman other than cabinet members, was made to the wife of the late Governor-General George Vanier.

"Madame Vanier has a place in the hearts of all Canadians equalled only by that of her late husband," Prime Minister Pearson said in making the announcement. "She was one half of a perfect partnership that served all Canadians."

Featherstone

Could Get 14 Years

MAP-GRAB VERDICT: GUILTY BUT NO SPY

OTTAWA (CP)—Bower Featherstone was found guilty Tuesday of one charge under the Official Secrets Act, and acquitted on a second charge.

The jury of 11 men and one woman found the 28-year-old government lithographer guilty of a charge of obtaining two copies of a confidential navy chart that might be useful to Soviet submarines.

He was found not guilty of retaining the two charts for a purpose prejudicial to the safety of the state between Feb. 13 and Oct. 25 last year.

SENTENCE APRIL 14
Judge Peter Macdonald remanded Featherstone in custody until April 24 at 10 a.m. for sentencing. The conviction carries a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison.

The jury returned to the Carleton County courtroom at 4 p.m. after deliberating for three hours and 10 minutes at the end of a six-day trial.

The judge told the jury that in his opinion they had reached the proper conclusion.

CLARIFICATION
The jury earlier interrupted deliberation after an hour and 40 minutes to ask Judge Macdonald to clarify the section of the Official Secrets Act referring to "purpose prejudicial to the safety of the state."

The judge said the act puts the onus on the accused to show that he had an innocent purpose if and when he kept a secret government document.

He said that the normal onus on the Crown to prove an offence is reversed in the Official Secrets Act in connection with the purpose of the accused.

NOT CROWN'S JOB
There was no obligation for the Crown to prove that Featherstone acted with an illegal purpose when he retained two copies of a confidential navy chart printed in the mapping branch of the energy department where he was employed.

The jury foreman said this was the point that confused the jurors.

The Official Secrets Act was passed after the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939 to protect the federal government against espionage. Each conviction under the act carries a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison.

Labor Losing County Votes

LONDON (AP) — The ruling Labor party suffered losses Tuesday in first results from week-long county elections.

Mitchell

Condemned Killer Tries To Cheat Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — The condemned slayer of a policeman made an apparent suicide attempt Tuesday, 21 hours before he was scheduled to become the first criminal executed in the United States for more than a year.

Aaron C. Mitchell, 37, slashed his left forearm with a razor blade shortly after his sobbing mother had visited him on Death Row.

The condemned man had told her, "Mama, maybe it's too late."

LATE APPEAL
Earlier in the day, Gov. Ronald Reagan refused to grant clemency to Mitchell, scheduled for execution at 10 a.m. today.

Another last ditch appeal was made by state Senator George Moscone who asked U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for a stay on the grounds that a legislative hearing was scheduled to begin in Sacramento today on a bill to repeal the death penalty.

Brain Much More Fascinating

We're Wasting Money Chasing Dead Rocks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Man will never be able to reach the nearest star to earth during his space probe, Nobel Prize winner Sir John Eccles said Tuesday.

Sir John also said the prospect of finding life on other planets is very remote, and man won't reach them anyway.

The Australian-born research scientist made the comments while exploring the time and money spent on space research in comparison to that spent on "inner space" — workings of the human brain.

"Unlocking the secret of the brain's function is the last and greatest problem a man can solve. It reduces space travel to kid's games."

Sir John said instead of

Sir John

wasting billions of dollars "chasing a lot of dead rocks, whizzing around a void" man should be trying to know himself, control himself and progress to a better life.

The outspoken 1963 winner of the Nobel Prize for medicine also took a slap at present-day educational systems.

He said reviews and exams did not tell the full story of a student's ability.

"If I had my way, all exams would be conducted in a library, with all the necessary texts and reference books available," said Sir John.

Groos Tells Sea Tales

Mix, Medals, Badges All Once Navy Beefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Victoria Liberal MP David Groos, a former naval captain, Tuesday derided the "overly conservative" attitude of some naval officers.

He said in the Commons defence debate that "you should have heard the uproar when sailors were allowed to mix a cola with their tot of rum."

Even Admiral Horatio Nelson would have liked the mix because he was a very progressive admiral.

Mr. Groos said many naval officers refused to wear the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal in 1941 because it was different.

There had been "great hostility" when Canada should have been introduced and many officers refused to wear them on for many months.

Groos

During the Second World War, the painting of maple leaves on the funnels of Canadian warships had spread like wildfire.

But orders had come down to take them off. The maple leaves used to be painted secretly on funnels at night and painted out by order in the daytime, Mr. Groos said.

Not until the war was over did the maple leaf become official on funnels.

Mr. Groos, former chairman of the Commons defence committee, said Parliament is creating a morale problem in the forces by talking so long about unification.

The "deadly pall of uncertainty" hanging over the forces should be removed. The services should be allowed to get on with their own route and timetable toward unification.

Mr. Groos said he is so strongly in favor of the bill he would return to the navy willingly tomorrow.

Nugent Takes Dare

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer threatened Tuesday night to take legal action against Terry Nugent (PC—Edmonton-Strathcona) if the Opposition MP repeats statements outside the Commons. (See also Page 20.)

Mr. Nugent accepted the challenge, telling Mr. Hellyer that he will make the statements on a public platform in St. Anne, Man., tonight.

The encounter occurred during the unification debate when Mr. Nugent expressed admiration for the skill with which, he said, Mr. Hellyer uses "the big lie technique" developed by Adolf Hitler.

Mr. Hellyer intervened to say that if Mr. Nugent repeats that outside the Commons where no immunity protects him from legal action, "I'll have him prove it in a court of law."

Mr. Nugent retorted that he would be glad to meet Mr. Hellyer in a court of law.

The exchange was cut by Herman Batten (L—Humber-St. George's), presiding in the chair, who said Mr. Nugent's phraseology went beyond the limits allowed in Parliament.

Mr. Nugent repeated the expression several times more. A verbatim record of the exchange recorded this:

Mr. Nugent: Since the minister has relied throughout this debate on the tried and true system developed by Adolf Hitler of the big lie, and since he is so adept at the practice of this system, I developed a new system of grudging admiration for the amount of skill he brought to bear in using the system.

Mr. Hellyer: I do not think I should allow that slur to go unchallenged. I am going to tell my honorable friend (Mr. Nugent) that he ever says that outside the House of Commons I will have him prove it before a court of law.

Mr. Nugent: In case the minister is interested, tomorrow I will be speaking in Manitoba. I will be back here on Thursday and I will repeat that I would be glad to meet the minister in a court of law.

Hankey, Pankey Again

FALLBROOK, Calif. (LAT)—For skeptics who insist that there's too much hanky-panky in politics, there's conclusive evidence in next Tuesday's school board elections here.

Among the incumbents seeking re-election are John A. Hankey and Robert H. Pankey.

Oasis Crash Kills 35

ALGIERS (Reuters) — An Algerian DC-4 airliner crashed at Ouargla in Algeria Tuesday, killing at least 35 persons, the Algerian news agency APS reported.

Mr. Nugent retorted that he would be glad to meet Mr. Hellyer in a court of law. The agency said there were four survivors, three badly injured.

The plane was on a routine weekly flight from Algiers to Tamarassat in the Sahara. Ouargla is an oasis township about five miles from Tamarassat and the plane crashed as it was coming in to land.

Successor for Premier

Five hours after death of Jamaican Prime Minister Sir Donald Sangster, 55, right, in Montreal Tuesday, Hugh Shearer, 43, left, was sworn in as new prime minister. He had been acting in that capacity since April 6.

Bulldozer Blade Signals Triumph

AT LAST: Esquimalt's lone ranger, Mrs. G. F. Dunlop, scored a victory Tuesday after 12 years of battling her local council and the school board.

Her shouts of delight could hardly be heard over the roar of a massive bulldozer that was pushing dirt about near Esquimalt high school.

The machinery at work was the culmination of a battle with the establishment that began when a small boy was rescued from the dump site known as Skinner's Flats some 12 years ago.

Mrs. Dunlop was one of a group of neighbors who searched for the child and called police after he was found to pull him from the swamp. He was up to his armpits in the ooze.

More recently, Mrs. Dunlop renewed her fight when young Evelyn Moss broke her arm playing on the piles of rubble at the site. The child is still wearing a cast.

During the course of her battle, the lone campaigner has been abused and attacked verbally by a goody cross-section of officialdom, but at last she has prevailed.

WHO GOOFED? Reports that the Greater Victoria Centennial Society has just $5,000 to carry out programs for the balance of centennial year have drawn fire from the group's co-ordinator, Jerry Gosley.

He explained Tuesday that "we have $5,000 left in the kitty after budgeting for all our scheduled plans. We feel pleased that we have this extrafloat still available for any special things or emergencies that come up."

The finances of the society would appear to be in much better shape than some people imagine.

Your Good Health

Prompt Psychiatry Urged

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

I will print only parts of a long letter from a worried mother whose son, who always has been "nervous," dropped out of high school once, and now has dropped out of college three times and, the letter goes on:

"He says he is mixed up and confused about life in general and sex, too. He freezes up when out with a girl. He is very intelligent and makes good grades but cracks up in the middle of the semester."

"He has applied for a job, but last summer he got a job in a factory and after ten or twelve hours walked out and said he quit."

"He admits he doesn't know why he does these things. I don't know where he turns next. 'My husband had a stroke and has serious lung disease and I can only pay his bills little by little. What can I do?'" — G.M.C.

I am no psychiatrist, but I don't require one to recognize that this young man is emotionally disturbed. If it weren't for the family's economic difficulties, I would urge examination by a psychiatrist at once.

Under the circumstances as they are, I would still seek psychiatric help. The family's regular physician may be able to direct the young man to a clinic.

A fairly short period of observation and help before a patient breaks down entirely soon.

Summit Police Aim Tear Gas

University Students had called Monday night for demonstrations against the summit meeting and "the presence of dictators in Uruguay and particularly of Lyndon Johnson, responsible for genocide in Vietnam."

The U.S. president's private chalet residence is heavily guarded by marines and secret service agents.

PASSES NEEDED

Ten thousand troops stood by in this town, which has been sealed except for those with special passes. Anti-aircraft batteries scanned the skies with orders to shoot down any unauthorized planes appearing during the conference.

The three days of talks, starting today, are aimed at charting Latin American economic development and eventual integration in a common market.

Latin Americans will be looking to the U.S. president for trade concessions — a point which has caused trouble for the foreign ministers who have been meeting here to smooth the way for the summit.

CHANGED MIND

At one point, Ecuadorian President Carlos Otto Aramburo threatened to stay home unless the U.S. made an offer on trade and aid. But he changed his mind after U.S. officials made tentative concessions.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk was reported to have told the ministers Monday that any written accord on easing strict requirements that U.S. aid be spent only on dollar purchases from the United States would have to wait until Washington solved its balance-of-payments problem.

NOTHING DIRECT

In an airport speech at Montevideo, the U.S. president did not refer directly to his proposal to the U.S. Congress to provide up to $1,500,000 in new aid to Latin America during the next five years.

But he repeated a previous pledge when he said, referring to Latin American initiative in economic progress: "Move boldly along this path and the United States will be at your side."

Powell

Landslide Vote Puts Powell Back in House

NEW YORK (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell won a lopsided congressional re-election victory in absentia Tuesday night, forcing the House of Representatives to decide anew what to do with its free-wheeling Harlem outcast.

In Washington, there was general agreement that to bar Powell from his House seat would be a political suicide.

Sino-Soviet Accord Speeding Hanoi Aid?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. officials said Tuesday that Russian and China appeared to have reached some sort of agreement to ease the flow of Soviet war materials to North Vietnam.

The agreement, following bitter Soviet charges that China was delaying or sabotaging supplies sent by rail to Hanoi, seems to have been reached during the past six weeks, the officials said.

VIETNAM ESCORT?

The conclusion here that China has agreed to stop harassing Soviet war material shipments is based on reports from countries with good contacts in three Communist capitals involved — Hanoi, Moscow and Peking.

They speculated that the agreement might involve the North Vietnamese meeting the supplies at the Soviet-Chinese border and safeguarding them on the trip into Vietnam.

Here's What The Experts Are Saying About The New Model VOLVO 144s

"The word for Volvo's first new sedan in 10 years is RUGGED! Call it safe, with a touch of luxury—and drive it forever!"

Reprint from "Popular Imported Cars Magazine"

"In our opinion 10 safety features really establish the New Volvo 144s as a true safety performance automobile, the firm already enjoys a reputation for building quality, durability and safety into its automobiles, but the 144s far exceeds anything safetywise that is, the company has thus produced."

There are actually 10 safety features of the 144s all of which are standard at no extra cost and which deserve merit. We'll start the ball rolling with the 3-wheel split brake system, which has it all over our domestic set-ups which have received "rave" notices over the past few months."

Reprint from Hi-Performance Cars Magazine
"The Volvo B-18 Engine is one of the most, if not THE most, reliable, rugged and unbreakable passenger car engines being built today."

Reprint from Sports Car Graphic Magazine

"Together the door pillars on the new Volvo 144s can support 15 tons and the roof of the car can actually support the weight of 12 neatly stacked cars on top of it. Now that's what I call built-in, not added-on safety engineering."

Reprint from Hi-Performance Cars Magazine
"Built to last 11 years in Sweden, you'll need an axe to finish it off in the U.S."

Reprint from "Car and Driver Year Book"

LISTEN DETROIT!—and you might learn something about building a really safe performance car from, would you believe, little ol' VOLVO!

Reprint from Hi-Performance Cars Magazine
"Once there was a Volvo with an ordinary 99,999 mile odometer. It lasted so long the company took to referring to it as 'Old Friend' and last year they phased it out of production after 23 years to make room for more 'Young Friends'."

"Young Friend" Volvo, the 122 model, Swedes and other people kept these cars so long that when they sold them the buyers couldn't really tell whether their 'new' used Volvos had covered 40,000 miles (just barely broken in property), 140,000 miles (usually a very healthy used car if properly cared for), 240,000 or even 340,000 miles (perhaps pretty tired even for a car as tough as a Volvo) and since most Volvos go through several hands before hitting their 11-year optional retirement age, Volvo sales engineers thought it only fair to do something for these future owners. They specified a 99,999-mile odometer."

Reprint: Foreign Car Guide

"The Volvo 144 seats themselves, are the epitome of comfort providing sufficient support for the thighs and cradling the back in a manner that would make long drives a real pleasure."

Reprint from Popular Imported Cars Magazine

"The engine and transmission are virtually unbreakable and it's as loyal as a puppy. We doubt anyone can drive a Volvo without getting a lasting impression and if he buys it, that impression will last and last and last."

Reprint from Car and Driver Year Book

"We've always said that the Volvo was a good car, the manufacturer has not let us down with this new model 144. We're convinced that dollar for dollar the new Volvo is a most impressive buy."

Reprint from Popular Imported Cars Magazine

"It has been storied about that various Detroit manufacturers have spent large sums of money to make car doors slam shut with the solid, reassuring sound of quality. It is doubtful whether it involves anything intentional, but shutting a Volvo door sounds like about eight and one half million dollars."

Reprint from Car and Driver Magazine

"When we consider that this car can be purchased with a fair number of options for less than $3,500, and at that price will outperform most and outlast anything that can be considered remotely competitive, you better believe that you are getting one heckuva automobile for one heckuva bargain. Unfortunately, there are precious few makes that share that distinction."

Callaghan

Widows, Cyclists Benefit In 'Sour' U.K. Budget

LONDON (CP)—James Callaghan presented England with a sour budget Tuesday. Although the country's economy is improving, Callaghan said the big tax load will have to continue.

Observers said it was the biggest non-budget of the century.

Outside of a few crumbs tossed to hard-working widows and bicycle and motorcycle enthusiasts, there was nary a bone for the cloth-capped worker or the limousine-owning stockbroker.

Saaris were heard all the way from London's financial centre to the industrial outposts of Liverpool and Manchester.

Several bankers and industrial leaders told 'Interviewers' that it was "a rotten, boring budget."

POUND RISES

Foreign bankers were more impressed. The chancellor of the exchequer's decision to continue credit and tax restraints pushed the pound a notch higher on foreign markets. It was apparent, from Callaghan's lengthy statement, that the labor government intended to keep a tight grip on inflation and restrain the rise in prices and wages.

Callaghan hinted, however, that the current six-per-cent bank rate may be eased this year if other countries continue to cut their rates.

STAPLE ITEM

His 19,000-word budget provided a minor concession for potential purchasers of bicycles and motorcycles, which, he indicated, are needed by hard-working breadwinners. The minimum down payment of 40 per cent is being cut to 25 per cent and the time to repay extended to 27 months from 24.

Widows with dependents and other women who have to earn a living for children or relatives will have a higher tax allowance.

But for the traveller with his eye on Expo 67 and other non-striking attractions, the limitation of $50 a year on travel funds will be retained until next November.

The budget estimated government revenue during 1967-68 at £11,704,000,000, up from £10,279,000,000 last year. Expenditures were estimated to rise to £11,067,000,000 (from £9,541,000,000), leaving a surplus of £637,000,000, down from £738,000,000 last year.

However, government loans to nationalized industry and other public operations will increase to £1,580,000,000 from £1,478,000,000 a year ago. This will mean that despite the estimated surplus, the government will have to borrow £943,000,000 this year, a sharp rise from £470,000,000 a year ago.

The personal tax of some 41 per cent and the corporation tax of 40 per cent remain unchanged. High purchase taxes, ranging up to 27½ per cent on automobiles, remain frozen.

Lunch Interrupted

TIBERIAS, Israel (UPI)—

Syrian gunners opened fire on an Israeli border settlement with mortars and artillery Tuesday and sent 200 American tourists, most of them from Massachusetts, rushing to underground shelters.

Syrian shells fell near the kibbutz (farming settlement) of Tel Katzir where Israelis were plowing fields on the eastern shore of the Biblical Sea of Galilee.

SECOND FLAREUP

It was the second border flareup in a week, following a similar shooting incident at a farm that touched off a tank

Israel and Syrian forces last Friday.

The Americans, tourists and a band of French Christian visitors were just sitting down to a lunch of fish at the nearby kibbutz of Ein Geb when the shells whistled in. They landed close to the shoreline restaurant.

MORE BONDS

Mrs. Samuel Cohen of Newton, Mass., said later she would go home "determined to buy more Israeli war bonds than ever before."

"Now we really understand what it means to live in an Israeli border settlement and under the guns of the Syrian army," she said.

Open Letter Prepared

Bonn Seeks East German Tie

BONN (LAT)—Chancellor Kiesinger and Foreign Minister Brandt began work Tuesday on a joint appeal by West Germany's coalition parties to the East German Communists for more open contacts short of outright recognition between the two parts of this divided country.

The Bonn leaders emphasized that such an appeal will be made at the party level, timed with the opening next week of the Communist Party Congress in East Berlin, rather than at the government level.

Kiesinger and Brandt, the leaders of the two parties forming West Germany's "grand coalition" government, met to discuss the possibility of sending an "open letter" to East Germany's Social Unity (Communist) party headed by Walter Ulbricht as a fresh move in Bonn's efforts to ease relations with the East.

They are doing so in spite of the full knowledge of the increasingly bitter antagonism which Ulbricht has been mounting against Bonn's "ostpolitik." And even though a rebuff from Ulbricht is almost certain, the effort is seen as another of many moves aimed at testing East Berlin's intentions regarding relations between the two parts of Germany or at least at demonstrating to the world that it is the Ulbricht regime that is blocking even the slightest step toward German reunification. Then he declared that his government would seek to "encourage" any new human, economic and cultural relations with our countrymen follow closely the lines set down in the other part of Germany."

Harrison Salisbury:

Asia Problem Even in Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—Even a settlement in Vietnam will not banish the problems of Southeast Asia, Harrison E. Salisbury says in a new book critical of Washington's viewpoint toward that area.

"Establishment of neutralized regimes in Saigon and Hanoi would only be the start," the New York Times correspondent writes in reviewing his travels to North Vietnam and nearby areas.

EQUALLY DANGEROUS

"It seemed to me that Laos represented an equally dangerous problem. Laos had become a mere fiction—a land which was in the hands of an uncertain number of guerrilla operations, some sponsored by the United States, some by the Communists, some of purely Laotian origin.

"Unless Laos could be quieted and sanctified, the whole theatre of struggle might simply shift westward from Vietnam, with the warriors of the CIA (U.S. Central Intelligence Agency) and the Chinese International going at it hammer and tongs.

SUPPORT NEEDED

"This would undermine the area dangerously. Cambodia had managed to stay out of the war, but it needed economic and political support as well. Thailand would be in trouble if it lost its burgeoning war boom prosperity.

Fourfold Move To Peace

(From CP, UPI, AP)

Canadian Foreign Affairs Minister Martin Tuesday offered a four-stage Vietnam peace plan based on the 1954 Geneva accords, which ended the French-Vietnamese Indochina conflict and split Vietnam into two countries.

In a policy statement to the Commons external affairs committee, Mr. Martin called for disengagement, a freeze on "the course of military events," cessation of hostilities and a final cleanup including troop withdrawals.

He made it clear, however, that he considers there is little hope of acceptance of the plan by the combatants.

BIGGER DRAFT

In Washington, meanwhile, the Pentagon has announced a draft call of 19,800 men for June, highest monthly figure this year but well below most months of 1966.

In the war zone, U.S. B-52 bombers, less than 24 hours after moving their base from Guam in the Pacific to Thailand, made their first strike Tuesday against an enemy stronghold in South Vietnam.

School Tax Blow

THE LARGE INCREASE in school taxation forecast at the weekend by Education Minister Leslie Peterson will tend to place many more British Columbians in the camp of the Union of B.C. Municipalities than in that of the B.C. School Trustees' Association on the issue of education finance.

The latter group contends in a manifesto that the real property tax "is an effective means of raising money for public purposes and is an appropriate source of funds for school purposes because it is capable of providing substantial revenue and capable of being varied in its rate from school district to school district, and there is no suitable alternative." (The Greater Victoria school board, it should be noted, dissented from this view.)

But the position of most municipal councils has long been quite the opposite: that the provision of education should be a provincial responsibility with all or almost all of the cost met from provincial revenues, and property-owners relieved of the present burden.

It is probably true as the trustees' association suggests that if school taxation were removed from property, the municipalities "would rapidly occupy this vacated field to secure additional funds for their purposes." And it is true that in this event, the total of provincial and municipal taxation would rise.

But it is also a fact that the municipalities, levying taxes in one of the most acutely felt forms, generally must choose year by year between raising the rates and falling to provide services that their citizens need and want—while all the time the provincial government can boast that it is not increasing taxes.

When the rise in school taxes this year is predicted by the minister to be 3.55 mills on average through the province, and 4.8 mills in Greater Victoria, or $4.80 on each $1,000 of taxable value, the increase of $10 in the homeowner grant goes aglimmering for most households and the councils are confronted with an almost impossible task of budget-cutting if the total mill-rates are to bear much resemblance to last year's.

The demand for a review of provincial-municipal financial relations can be expected to increase accordingly.

Fault Lies Within

IT WAS REFRESHING to read of Manpower Minister Jean Marchand telling a gathering of fellow Quebec Liberals that English-speaking Canada was not the big bad ogre of confederation.

These are not the words he used but his message was the same. The separatist arguments of some Quebecois were "pure and simple demagoguery." Confederation was not to blame for the internal difficulties of Quebec, and in fact the BNA Act that created Canada as a nation from sea to sea accorded for the first time in Quebec history formal rights to French-Canadians in Canada.

This has always been plain except to those who wish to pretend otherwise. The BNA Act gives to Quebec the same rights as it does to all other provinces; including rights that embrace language, taxation, municipal authority, education, natural resources and other matters. And never have these rights been violated in favor of English-Canada.

If Quebec has in recent years found itself backward in some areas of modern progress the fault lies within that province. The other provinces of Canada have not moved forward because of any favoritism on the part of the central government at Ottawa. They have reached their present stages of advancement because of their own initiative and endeavors.

There were problems to be dealt with in his home province, Mr. Marchand reminded his listeners, but these were not to be laid at the door of Confederation. Quebec had "all the fundamental liberties."

A clue to Quebec troubles may be found in his citing as a great revolution the setting up by former Premier Jean Lesage (1960-1966) of a Quebec department of education. Undoubtedly this has caused a spurring of French aims and outlook—perhaps oriented by the separatists against English-Canada to hide a provincial weakness in this field. Certainly Quebec governments have been laggard in the assumption of this responsibility, granted them by the BNA Act 100 years ago.

Hillocks and Holes

THIS IS POTHOLE season in much of Canada. The Edmonton Journal before us has a cartoon showing a workman calling down into a breach in the road, "Well, don't spend all day down there, for pete's sake—after all, we're only supposed to fix the WORST potholes, y'know..." The Globe and Mail has "a not entirely undiluted pean" to spring in Ottawa by George Bain which ends with the refrain:

What's bad as the snowbanks make way for the green,
There's left all uncovered what's tawdry and mean,
And Ottawa's streets, well, by God, they're obscene;
Oh-h-h-h, the ice is going out in the Ottawa River,
And Ottawa's simply obscene.

Why mention it? Not to gloat. Not to be smug about nature's kindness in the extreme southwest of Canada. But only as a reminder that there are worse things than those roller-coaster mounds on Douglas Street in downtown Victoria where the manholes have been raised in preparation for repaving.

In other words, let's count our blessings instead of cussing the city engineer.

Mr. Diefenbaker: I hope he does not become one, because up to the present time any prophecies he has made have been entirely without basis in truth or fact.

Economic Law

Traders Leap All Barriers

By PHILIP DEANE

TRADE between the rest of the world and North America will go on, even if the current negotiations at Geneva for world-wide, across-the-board tariff cuts, fail.

Referring to these negotiations, every negotiator U.S. Vice-President Hubert Humphrey said that Europe and North America are faced with the clear choice between mutual isolation or closer partnership.

Someone must have written this sentence for Mr. Humphrey, who knows better. At Geneva, every negotiator has declared he will make concessions only if he receives equal concessions in exchange.

In other words, agreement will be reached only if it seems to serve everybody's interests, which is the only lasting basis for voluntary agreements. It also is a very difficult thing to achieve because each negotiator at Geneva has to think not only of logic, equity and balance sheets but also of frightened greed and disappointed hopes back home.

Thus it is not unlikely that agreement might not be reached and that international trade might have to continue without any grand, generalised cuts of the tariffs that allegedly impede commerce.

In the rich countries of North America and Europe, the people have now come to believe that standards of living will rise perpetually. The governments have to maintain a range of public and welfare services which become increasingly costly as the numbers and expectations of the people increase.

The consequent necessary growth in national income cannot be achieved without international trade. Even the U.S., the largest market in the world, cannot rely on its internal resources for the necessary growth; it needs trading partners and thus needs American trade.

When a specific tariff interferes with the need for more trade, a way is found to abolish or circumvent this tariff, even if this means building subsidies behind the tariff wall.

The economies of the rich nations are geared to international trade. The European Common Market, despite its appearance, is not designed to exclude the products of non-members—the members couldn't afford to do so.

Shipping, air, credit, airlines insurance, to mention only a few concentrations of economic strength, are internationally minded and organized; they are a constant force against restrictions of trade among the rich.

Trade with the poor is another matter. Like all poor, they are at a disadvantage because they cannot be rich customers but are welfare cases. We have, however, reached the stage where we begin to recognize that welfare cases, be they individuals or nations, must be helped to become paying customers, since we'd rather be paid for what we give them.

Banished by de Gaulle

NATO's Flag Refused to Fly When New Headquarters Opened

By GAVIN YOUNG from Paris

AT the ceremony opening the site of the NATO headquarters near Mons in Belgium, a pulley broke and the NATO flag refused to fly. For some it seemed symbolic of the general feeling of resentment among NATO officials for President Charles de Gaulle's rude banishment of NATO from Paris to the wilds of industrial Belgium.

The NATO supreme commander, General Lyman Mayall, may feel it, too. But he has too much of a diplomat to mention it in his official speech at the flag-raising.

The NATO move beat de Gaulle's deadline, laid down six months ago in a surprise announcement, by 30 hours. The deadline was extremely short. One might have expected a military man like the proud general to take more account than he did of the nightmare problem of moving 2,000 to 3,000 families, furniture, complex technical equipment and headquarters communications networks into a new site that had to be developed from scratch.

For some weeks a French general and a few French officers have been ostentatiously walking about the original SHAPE, just outside Paris, clearly making sure that there was no dwelling. "They might just as well have had stop-watches in their hands," said a NATO officer. But no one is giving de Gaulle any satisfaction by being a day or two over the April 1 deadline.

Allied officers took comfort from the fact that a number of French officers privately regretted the house's exodus and professionally regretted the loss of useful contacts with officers from other countries.

De Gaulle's eagerness to get rid of his allies is, of course, linked to his corresponding eagerness to stand strong and independent without them. The NATO expulsion is part of his plan to be shot of American influence, both economic and military; to create a special Franco-Russian detente; and to become militarily self-reliant, through France's own nuclear force of frappe.

Whether any of these aims is realistic is something which not only outsiders but very many Frenchmen would contest. Detente with Eastern Europe, for example, is not the monopoly of France; Britain and the United States are not getting on so badly with the Russians either. And the force de frappe is something to which the entire French Left, not only the Communists, is utterly opposed. The Left, which is recurrent in France, believes it is a waste of money which could be much better spent on peaceful technological research and development, and on the drastic social overhaul that France so badly needs and has not got from de Gaulle's eight years in power.

As for independence from the Americans, de Gaulle has not yet achieved even that in the strictly military sense. What he has done is disengaged from the integrated high command structure at SHAPE; his troops do not necessarily have to do what the supreme commander tells them. But, nor for that matter, do other allied forces — although it is pretty certain that they would.

De Gaulle's withdrawal is mainly symbolic. For defence of France, the French force de frappe is a puny thing, and will remain so for some years. If present assessments are correct.

At present, France has some short-range light bombers capable of delivering a rather small nuclear weapon. They carry little fuel and are vulnerable with huge living expenses, bargain for lodging. A thousand families will have to leave their children behind at schools in Paris because the present term does not end until July.

NATO's departure will deprive France of about a quarter of her foreign exchange income. It will also, however, leave to France a considerable complex of valuable buildings and sites. Today, a government investigation is on foot to discover how best the French can profit from the airfields, hospitals, headquarters complexes, ports and communications systems that must remain after the departure of 35,000 NATO troops.

Some will be offered at cheap prices to industry, airfields will be turned over to the French air force to house units returning from Germany. Other installations will be transformed, it seems, into youth camps, and even into animal conservation centres.

The home that SHAPE left near Versailles, however, is not something that NATO command need grieve about too long. One expected to find a magnificent baroque structure, or a small version of the United Nations complex in New York — at any rate, something large, imposing and at least comfortable. In fact, it was nothing more impressive than a fairly small, sparsely-furnished complex of low, makeshift buildings, not unlike any army's recruits' depot. The new Belgian SHAPE, still rising among the bulldozers and mounds of earth, already looks more in keeping with General Lemaitre's advice to NATO recently to "gear its efforts to the dynamics of the future."

Integrator-Escalator

Traffic Congestion A Thing of the Past

By JOHN DAVY from London

A new form of passenger transport in big cities, called the Integrator, has been designed at the Battelle Institute in Geneva. It is a cross between an escalator and a moving belt, which the designers say could carry 10 times more passengers than a conventional underground train at considerably less cost.

Gabriel Bouladon, head of the Institute's engineering department, describes the Integrator in the current issue of Science Journal. He points out that there is a serious "transport gap" between walking and going by car. Buses are bogged down by other traffic in all large cities. And underground trains are nearing saturation at peak periods, while the construction of new tunnels is extremely expensive.

The solution worked out at the Institute is to convert underground railways to the Integrator system, thus enormously increasing their capacity. Cities with no undergrounds could run the Integrator on lightweight overhead rails.

As the passenger approaches the Integrator, he sees a row of ordinary-looking escalators side by side, but with rather wide steps. He steps on, and starts to descend. Low doors then rise up in front and behind him, so that he is riding in a small open cabin.

As he nears the end of the descent, his cabin starts to move sideways as well as downwards, together with the cabins which have formed in the adjacent escalators. The sideways movement speeds up, and forward motion slows down, until the cabins line up with those in front to form a continuous moving train, which enters the tunnel.

Parallel to the train is a belt moving at the same speed (about 30 m.p.h.). The passenger can step onto it and take a seat if he is travelling for several stops. But if he proposes to get off at the next station, he remains where he is, until his cabin starts to move sideways and to slow down, eventually turning into an ascending escalator again.

Although the system sounds complicated, Mr. Bouladon claims it will in fact be very simple. The central transporting belt will weigh about one-third less per passenger than a conventional underground train, which has to include electric drives, brakes, suspension and so on.

The moving belts would be slung from overhead rails, and driven continuously by electric motors at intervals. No energy would be wasted in accelerating and decelerating large loads, and the energy cost per passenger will be one-tenth of that on the underground train. The overhead rail will be lighter than the railway lines it replaces, and the main limitation on the sharpness of bends and steepness of slopes which can be negotiated will be the comfort of the passengers.

The whole system could be fitted into smaller tunnels or run from overhead rails which would be much lighter and less conspicuous than a monorail.

Compulsory English Literature

Sometimes Teaching Fails in Its Aims

By R. B. BOURDILLON, MA, DM
(Third of four articles)

THE general public believe that the teaching of English is important for showing students how to write efficiently, to spell correctly, and above all to take a wide and well balanced outlook. Unfortunately it too often fails in these aims. Some causes of such failure are as follows:

As John Gross commented recently, "For 100 years or more most writers of genius have been implacably hostile to the world in which they live." Similarly Edmund Gosse, when discussing Thomas Hardy, asked: "What has Providence done to Mr. Hardy that he should rise up and shake his fist at his Creator?"

These writers of "genius" have evidently failed to adjust to life in this world. Such maladjusted minds are not well-suited for educating our youth, and tend to produce dislike for their writings.

The dislike of our world by modern writers seems natural when we consider the difficulties caused by a literary education. Modern literary research is almost valueless because the former fields have been plowed and replowed so often that there is little fresh to discover (e.g. the estimated number of 4,500 books already written on Shakespeare). Then their studies have usually banned writers from most modern knowledge, owing to the view that the "arts" are superior to, and do not need, the sciences. This ignorance of science leads to a sense of incompetence in practical affairs, to nostalgia for the past, and dread of the future.

The dislike of our world by modern writers seems natural when we consider the difficulties caused by a literary education. Modern literary research is almost valueless because the former fields have been plowed and replowed so often that there is little fresh to discover (e.g. the estimated number of 4,500 books already written on Shakespeare). Then their studies have usually banned writers from most modern knowledge, owing to the view that the "arts" are superior to, and do not need, the sciences. This ignorance of science leads to a sense of incompetence in practical affairs, to nostalgia for the past, and dread of the future.

The school book "Man's Search for Values" shows a little preference for one code of conduct over any other that it gives little guidance to students, and almost seems to advocate that most destructive of all beliefs — nihilism — the refusal to attach values to anything or thought.

It is natural for educational authorities to shrink from teaching ethics, partly for fear of offending the churches or their more dogmatic members, and partly as a reaction against the crude "preaching" of many 19th century schoolbooks, the Stakhanovism of the U.S.S.R., and the Maoism in China. But such caution can be excessive.

We should aim at vigorous, healthy citizens, not preoccupied with death, but showing integrity and courage, with kindness and tolerance for others. This can be achieved without any "preaching," if, instead of dwelling on misery and "the darkness of man's heart," we take the Pauline advice: "Whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are true... think on these things." Instead of gloomy and improbable fiction, we might choose stimulating books such as S. E. White's "Rules of the Game," and Valery-Radot's "Life of Pastour." Both have real application to modern problems. Changes of this type would encourage students to read for pleasure instead of longing to get away from school.

A serious defect is that much literature is chosen for its style rather than its content, or even for its dramatic effect regardless of the type of emotions that it arouses. This does much harm by leading to false standards of value. What should we think of a chemistry book based on outworn theories known to be wrong, but chosen because its style was considered beautiful?

The adult fondness for Shakespeare's tragedies is based on their style and dramatic effect rather than their content, which is of little value. This was emphasized by Bernard Shaw, who greatly admired Shakespeare as a dramatist, but wrote of his ideas as "plattitudinous fudge." These tragedies, although still in fashion, could well be omitted from school curricula, giving place to more important matters.

Fashions in literature are almost as ephemeral as those in art, and deserve less consideration than the old advice given to speakers: "Have something to say, and then say it." Senior officials of the department of education and the politicians concerned are able and conscientious men, but they seem unaware of the defects of the books selected for the compulsory study of English.

Could they not accept their responsibility for these "The Red Badge of Courage," and "Thirty-one Stories," and asking themselves: Are these really the most important books that we could give our students to study?

Dramatic changes would follow, with much gain to B.C. education. (To be concluded)

Rapid Expansion

North Sea Gas Boon to Britain

By HENRY JONES, Chairman of Britain's Gas Council

BY this summer, about one-tenth of Britain's total gas consumption will be supplied from sources below the bed of the North Sea — only two years after submarine exploration began. The first gas from this source began to flow ashore at Embsay, Yorkshire, in March to be processed and delivered to consumers.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature of the story is that success is assured while exploration is still very much in its infancy. About one-third of the 50 or so wells drilled or now being sunk are known to have penetrated gas reserves, and only a small proportion of the total area licensed for prospecting in the continental shelf has so far been explored.

Britain uses on average the town gas equivalent of 1,000 million cubic feet of natural gas a day. Already discovered under the seabed are resources sufficient to supply at least double that amount for 20 to 30 years. It may well be that reserves will be proved by future drillings to support for a generation a flow of 3,000 million cubic feet a day or more.

If circumstances justify it, the gas industry's present plans can be developed to handle as much as 4,000 million cubic feet a day — four times present British consumption. A flow of this size would make the gas reserves in the North Sea comparable with the Dutch natural gas field at Slochteren, one of the world's largest.

The preliminary phase of the gas industry's plans involves the laying of some 1,200 miles of large-diameter high-pressure pipeline. A start has been made with the 24-inch diameter line stretching inland from Embsay. This has been completed as far as Killingholme, in Lincolnshire, where first North Sea gas supplies are blended with another gas and then distributed as normal town gas.

By the summer this No. 1 North Sea gas feeder main will have stretched its full 90 miles to the existing natural gas grid, which since 1964 has been supplying imported Algerian gas to eight of the country's 12 areas gas boards.

Nos. 2 and 3 feeder mains are already planned to join in at other points on this grid which itself is to be extended to the other four boards — Northern England, Scotland, the South-west and Wales. All this is scheduled for completion by 1970 at a cost estimated at more than £110 million ($330 million).

While the national transmission network is being built, the industry is pushing ahead to make the most of its new source of energy. North Sea gas will save valuable foreign exchange by lessening imports of petroleum products. It should help reduce fuel costs in industry and so make manufactured goods cheaper to produce.

It could turn out to be the most important development in Britain since the industrial revolution.

Having pioneered cheap new methods of making gas from naphtha, the industry's average prices are at about the same level as five years ago, so it was geared for success even before the supply under the North Sea was discovered. It has achieved growth rates of 5, 8, and an estimated 7 per cent in successive years.

Apathetic Germans Turn Blind Eye To 'Nationalism in a White Shirt'

The price for the admiral shot to the German ego — a streamroller government that has eliminated even a token of effective political opposition — disturbs very few Germans. The merger of the Christian Democrats and the Social Democrats, wielding a massive 90 per cent majority, was constituted within the framework of impeccable democratic rules and, at the same time, calculated to silence any heretical democrats who might rock the boat.

In a nation which has constitutionally outlawed the Communist Party, the swelling up of the socialists into "the grand coalition" has ended for the time being any movement from the left.

Von Thadden

Nipped in Bud

Its more sophisticated nationalism has nipped in the bud the cruder nationalism of the far right represented by the so-called "neo-Nazis" of Adolf von Thadden's National Democratic Party.

In the works now is new legislation to change the Federal Republic's electoral laws from proportionate to direct voting to eliminate the small, but troublesome, liberal opposition of the Free Democrats who have 49 seats in the Bundestag against the 447 of the Juggernaut coalition.

It is freely predicted here that should Von Thadden's divided, ragtag collection of malcontents make another showing in provincial elections in late April the constitutional axe will fall.

All Noted

At each of Von Thadden's meetings government representatives take down the "dangerous" utterances of his more undisciplined converts to add to the dossier that will be used to silence him, in the name of democracy.

The price of "nationalism in a white shirt" has been, as well, the shoulder-shrugging acceptance of a one-time Nazi in the Chancellor's Palais Schaumburg.

The visitor finds that the influential press of Germany, while scrupulously documenting the record, has casually stomachached the unsavory background of 63-year-old Dr. Kurt Georg Kiesinger, the handsome, debonair, persuasive third chancellor in West Germany's post war era.

'Youth' of 37

The prescribed image is of "a youthful indiscretion," though "Gentleman Georg," a lawyer, Roman Catholic and Christian Democrat, was a not-so-youthful 37 years of age when, in 1941 under Hitler, he accepted the job of "waging the decisive struggle for public opinion" through German-controlled radio stations in occupied countries. He continued his membership in the Nazi Party, begun in 1933, until the bitter end of hostilities when he languished for 18 months in a United States' Army internment camp.

The abiding concern about Kiesinger's qualifications was simply whether he would be a strong leader. In four short months he has satisfied those who needed to be satisfied.

'Exquisite'

Smoothly, plausibly, he's pointed the way to the new German status without relinquishing any of those demands that, from a Von Thadden, so arouse the passions of the outside world.

"Kiesinger's footwork is exquisite," says a longtime British correspondent here. "He pushes the vision of European unity through the common destiny of France and Germany without compromising his loyalty to the United States or the Atlantic alliance."

He pledges his support for disarmament without closing the door in German participation in a European nuclear force.

Wooded, Won

He successfully wooed the Eastern European nations without the slightest hint of recognizing the rearrangement of borders that came about because of the war or the existence of East Germany.

He successfully wooed the longing to become wholly accepted into a hostile world without in any way arousing the suspicion that Germany is once more arrogantly on the march.

Behind the facade of unity Germany's most ambitious seekers of power manoeuvre for the moment when their differences may become in-part of it inclined to liquidate the cold war.

This drang nach Osten, the push toward the east, is a strong economic offensive. West German's trade with the Eastern European socialist nations (excluding East Germany) is second only to that of the Soviet Union. While last year's figure of $1,800,000,000 amounted to only 4 per cent of West Germany's total exports, it's growing fast.

Since trade balances are heavily in West Germany's favor one strategy toward diplomatic relations is the removal of import quotas. This was the clinching bargaining point that caused Romania, the maverick of the satellite nations, to be the first to break the ice by exchanging ambassadors.

Compromises

For both sides it meant compromises in previously rigid positions.

For Romania: an abandonment of the pledge made by the seven-member nations of the Warsaw Pact that recognition of the two German states is essential to the security of Europe. Romania turned a conveniently deaf ear to Chancellor Kiesinger's reiterated declaration that West Germany alone represents all the German people.

Two 'Tiers'

For West Germany: an abandonment of the Hallstein Document decreeing that Bonn would have no relations with any country recognizing the German Democratic Republic, excluding the Soviet Union with which it has had diplomatic relations for 12 years.

opened the door to Czechoslovakia.

No moves whatever have been made toward concessions needed to soften the suspicions of the Poles.

While Foreign Minister Brandt and other liberal minds in the coalition are said to be privately anxious to formally recognize the Oder-Neisse line and thus cede title to some third of Polish territory to which Bonn still holds claim, it would be a politically unpopular move and Brandt is said to have agreed to wait indefinitely.

Cost Too High

Even with that concession the distrust of the Federal Republic remains so deep in Poland — and so constantly nurtured by its Communist leaders — that a detente, in the opinion of one foreign office source here, is "years and years away."

The price Poland is demanding is not only an acceptance of the Oder-Neisse boundary, but recognition by West Germany of Walter Ulbricht's East German regime, the abandonment of West Berlin and a renouncing of all interest in nuclear weapons. In West Germany that means no deal.

For the average West German the drang nach Osten has been accepted with mixed approval.

For some the first sweet reward of Romanian recognition was the rage of the 73-year-old Ulbricht, who saw it as the opening gambit in a process of encirclement, isolation and eventual absorption by West Germany.

Two Views

The evidence that it might mean a weakening in the monolithic East European block of nations, was, in itself, justification, in the view of many West Germans, for the policy of "building bridges" to the east.

To others it held out the promise of a change from the tense confrontation of opposing ideologies — NATO forces eyeball-to-eyeball with the forces of the Warsaw alliance — and a significant relaxation of the military threat.

Big Dream

That accomplished, in this view, the Federal Republic would be freed of its dependence on the United States and able to fully pursue the goal of a European political and military federation.

But for most Germans the long and difficult task of restoring relations with the Communists, termed by Kiesinger "the supreme challenge of our generation," leads to the dream of reunification of the two Germanys, divided since 1945.

Patient Race

It is a distant dream, but this is a patient race. Many knowledgeable observers here see some sort of confederation, brought about by the shifting alliances, under which the combined might of the Federal Republic and the Democratic Republic, now second only to the Soviet Union as an eastern industrial power, would co-exist in harmony as the prelude to regaining their common identity.

More than any other long range view that prospect, however distant and certainly not within the lifetime of Herr Ulbricht, nourishes the West German hunger for a return to political power in the world.

Friends to Run New Company?

Krupp Fights Back To Retain Empire

By ANTHONY TERRY
from Bonn

The House of Krupp is fighting back again. The world's largest private industrial empire, once Hitler's premier armory, seemed to have reached the end of the road last month.

This was when the German government (plus a consortium of 200 banks) stated conditions for bailing Krupp's out of the $700,000,000 debt in which it stands at present.

The conditions were that the empire be broken up, and that Alfred Krupp von Bohlen surrender the personal ownership of Krupp's which his family have enjoyed for 156 years.

A six-man committee was appointed to supervise the carving-up of Krupp's into separate parts. But last week, when the group held its first meeting, things were beginning to look a little different.

Alfred Krupp — without any discernible authority to do so — last week began to make appointments which seem well calculated to enable him to maintain control over the disparate elements of the empire after they are separated.

The vital point about the projected dissolution is that the entire Krupp ownership must be transferred from Alfred's person into the control of a limited company which is to be specially formed and in which he is to have no interest.

But already, Krupp has announced that the chairman of this company will be a Ruhr steel executive, Guenther Vogelsang, who began his career with Krupp's.

The fact that Vogelsang is coming back to a lower salary makes people think that his real role will be as Alfred's "man of confidence" in the new concern.

The second main principle of the dissolution is that the new limited company is to hand over its profits to a foundation for scientific research.

Alfred Krupp's plan, it is believed, is for his "personal plenipotentary-general" Berthold Beitz, to be in charge of the foundation.

Beitz was running Krupp's for Alfred right up to the breaking financial debacle a few months ago.

It looks very like the continuation of the Krupp empire by other means. And if it works, it will be as remarkable an achievement as Alfred's repositioning of his birthright after he had been dispossessed and sentenced to jail for war-crimes.

The question now is how the administrative council will react to Krupp's manipulations. It is a body of somewhat mixed influence. By far the most formidable figure is the financier, Hermann J. Abs, head of the Deutsche Bank, Krupp's main creditors.

If Abs knicks up with the other strong man on the committee, Otto Brenner, the outspoken boss of the Metal Workers' Union, and they are backed by others, Krupp will find himself firmly controlled.

Alliances between highly conservative German bankers and trade union leaders are, however, not particularly frequent occurrences, and the remaining three committee men carry considerably less weight.

Krupp's main problem with the empire, apart from maintaining as much control as he can, is to restore financial solvency — this has got to mean selling off some parts of his sprawling patrimony which has interests as widely separated as preserved sausages and prefabricated houses.

It Takes More Than $5

A Saanich youth who paid $5 to become a member of the International Association of Investigative and Special Police used a flashing red light to stop a car on Wilkinson Road March 4 and then asked the driver for his licence and insurance.

Dennis Nicholls, 3771 Saanich, was found guilty in central magistrate's court Tuesday of impersonating a police officer and was fined $50.

David Parsons, 19, said he was stopped just after 11 p.m. March 4 by the flashing light as he drove his girl friend home.

The driver of the other car, which had the light mounted on its dash, approached him and asked for his papers.

Mr. Parsons said he would not show the papers until the driver, whom he recognized as Nicholls, showed his credentials. Nicholls was in street clothes.

"He said he would get them and walked back to his car," Mr. Parsons said. "I pulled out."

Mr. Parsons stopped at his girl friend's house and then followed the other car as it drove past.

WOBBLY WHEEL. Constable David McGregor said Nicholls told him he was not a police officer and admitted stopping the car.

"He said he was going to tell him (Parsons) to get a wobbly wheel fixed," Constable McGregor said.

Nicholls told the court he joined the American organization so he could help the municipal police. He said at that time he thought membership in the association permitted him to stop cars.

"I now know differently," he said.

Larry Caton, 14 Vickery, was fined $50 for consuming liquor in a public place. He admitted drinking beer on Store Street March 18.

Loren Elliott, 1670 Fort, was fined $25 for loitering by night. He pleaded not guilty and court was told Elliott was seen running from the door of an adjoining apartment after the apartment's letter box had been lifted.

Defence counsel Jack Gatehouse contended Elliott's tenancy of the nearby apartment allowed him access to the corridors of the apartment house.

Magistrate J. A. Byers said the proceedings could be called a "Peeping Tom" case.

FINED IN TRAFFIC COURT for careless driving: Arnold Story, 1225 June, $40, and Donald Sykes, 879 Esquimalt, $35.

A man who wrote a $15 cheque at a Colwood service station when there were only a few cents in his bank account pleaded guilty to false pretences. Gordon McKay, 2865 Florence Lake, was remanded to April 19 for a pre-sentence report. The cheque, written

Treasure Found In Trash

One man's junk is any child's treasure, or so Fred Lapine, 837 Wollastone, found out after scouring his basement during Esquimalt spring cleanup campaign. Neighbourhood youngsters arrived before public works cleanup crew and Mr. Lapine watched as "loot" he thought was discarded was swapped and returned to back of his lot as youngsters could build a fort. — (William E. Riel Relative Refutes Story of Massacre

By NANCY BROWN

Louis David Riel, leader of the 1885 Riel rebellion, is much maligned, his distant cousin, Mrs. Theresa Pritchard-Balla of Qualicum Beach, said Tuesday.

Reverend Mrs. Marjorie Howard, 765 Lavender, told the Colonist that Riel was responsible for the massacre of women and children at Frog Lake, was captured by her father, William Diehl, and two other men and subsequently executed.

He was assisted by Adolphus Nolin, maternal grandfather of Mrs. Pritchard-Balla, and a Franco-Indian cousin of Louis Riel.

Two horses and $30 were paid for release of the two women. Mrs. Pritchard-Balla also said that Louis Riel was never captured.

"He gave himself up May 15, 1885, after writing Gen. Middleton and refusing to accompany his own brilliant general, Dumont, on what was to be a successful escape into the United States."

Chicago Killer Wins Appeal

CHICAGO (UPI) — A U.S. district court of appeals ruled Tuesday that William Heirens, serving life sentences for the murders of six-year-old Suzanne Degnan and two women more than 20 years ago, is entitled to a new hearing before the Illinois supreme court.

The unanimous ruling of the three-judge panel was one of the few victories Heirens, now 38, has won in his battle for freedom since he was sentenced to three consecutive life imprisonment terms in 1946.

HEARING DUE — The appeals court said Heirens should have been provided legal counsel when he filed a petition for a writ of error before the state supreme court in 1964.

The appeals court said Heirens is entitled to a "full and early hearing" before the supreme court on his petition for a review of his conviction.

Heirens, a convict at Stateville penitentiary, himself prepared the petition to the state supreme court. It was one of many appeals in his behalf which have been turned down.

DISSECTED BODY — The murders of Suzanne Degnan and of Frances Brown, 33, and Josephine Ross, 43, shocked the nation in 1946. The Degnan girl's body was dissected and its parts scattered in sewers in Chicago's north side.

At the scene of another of the slayings the killer scrawled in lipstick on a wall: "Stop me before I kill more."

Heirens, a University of Chicago student, was arrested and convicted, largely on the basis of a confession.

Speck Trial Goes To Jury Soon

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — A police expert testified Tuesday the fingerprints of Richard Speck were found on the door through which eight young nurses were led to their doom.

Lieut. Emil George Giese was the 41st and next-to-last witness to be called by the prosecution at Speck's murder trial.

The defense is expected to begin its attempt today to save the 25-year-old drifter from the electric chair. It has asked the jury of seven men and five women to find Speck innocent or sentence him to death.

The case could go to the jury late this week or early next week.

When court adjourned for the day, prosecutor William Martin said he would have only one more witness before the prosecution rested today.

Cook County public defender Gerald Getty told reporters that he planned to begin questioning defense witnesses immediately after the prosecution rests.

Sales Take Jump At Mayfair

By HARRY YOUNG, Business Editor

The 22 tenants of the Mayfair shopping centre, which include Woodward's department store, averaged an increase of 12 per cent in sales during 1966, according to the annual report of Canadian Allied Property Investments Ltd., owners of the centre.

Canadian Allied made a net profit of $33,506 in 1966 against $30,334 in 1965, and increased its holdings of land and buildings to $13,938,054, $9,094,700 in the previous year.

Most of the company's income so far has come from Mayfair but, since November, its Guildford shopping centre on the mainland has been in operation, and this is expected to add to the profit picture in future years. The company says the initial results from Guildford, not yet fully occupied, have been "most gratifying."

One U.S. investment advisory service thinks the auto industry is having its bad time right now, and auto stocks are in a range at which they should be bought.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute of New York says some U.S. senators, alarmed by the continuing decline in the rate of new car sales, want to see the excise tax on cars lowered from seven per cent to four per cent or even one per cent.

1968 Success Seen

But even more important, it feels that six months from now the 1968 models, with all their promised safety equipment, will go over big with the consumer.

A call for proxies to vote against the present management of Bralorne Pioneer Mines Ltd. at its April 24 meeting is to draw a reply from management. George Davenport, president, said a letter would be sent to shareholders outlining the company's position, which he described as "generally sound."

A Montreal group of five, led by James Doherty, wants the management ousted because it claims itself "disenchanted" with the performance which has seen assets drop from $4,300,000 in 1964 to $1,900,000 in 1965 and the share value decline to $1.50 from a 1963 high of $6.45.

The widely-adopted system of grading hotels and other travel accommodation by the use of stars has grown in Britain to include petrol.

British motorists at most pumps now can buy gasoline rated from five to two stars, and are getting a cut price of up to fourpence a gallon as well. Five stars means 100-and-over octane, four stars a minimum of 99 octane, three stars a 95 octane minimum and two stars 91 octane.

An oil spokesman said, "The British motorist now knows exactly what he is getting in terms of performance, and does not have to compare one maker's marketing brand with another."

A Question for B.C.

Question: How do we know if our premium brands are as good as one another — or our regulars for all that.

The once nearly-broke Allied Towers Merchants Ltd. has found a new key to existence, and the original shareholders in the company are being made an offer that will get them most of their money back.

Oshawa Wholesalers Ltd. has made an offer to holders of Allied Towers preferred and common shares to exchange their holdings into Oshawa A shares. The offer is three Oshawa A for 10 Allied preferred and one Oshawa A for 10 Allied common. Oshawa A trades around $31.

Net consolidation profit of British Newfoundland Corp. (Brinco) was $1,570,991 (13 cents) in 1966 against $740,199 (six cents) in 1965.

Brinco says it can produce commercial power at Churchill Falls on the Hamilton River by 1972 and can have all 10 units there in operation by 1974. It is a 6,000,000-horsepower project estimated to cost $800,000,000.

Atlantic Sugar Refineries net income in 1966 was $6,150,907 ($1.04) compared with $5,444,391 (91 cents) in 1965. The annual report says Acadia Pulp and Paper's new groundwood pulp mill at South Nelson, N.B., will soon be operating at its full 150,000-ton-a-year capacity. Atlantic owns 51 per cent of Acadia.

Nicholson Sees Record

Optimism Not Shared On New House Work

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Nicholson said in the Commons Tuesday that Canada will set a record this year in spring house-building activity.

But his statement, as minister in charge of housing, drew protests from opposition MPs that the over-all house-construction activity of the country is slack and prices are rising.

The government announced earlier that it is undertaking a program of direct mortgage lending during April and May to inject additional funds into house construction.

Donald MacInnis (PC—Cape Breton South) asked whether veterans would be permitted to build houses on city lots under the Veterans Land Act. Veterans Minister Teillet said the government has made no decision to have the act changed.

Sportsman's Show To Have Everything
 Accent on outdoor activities will be the theme for the Kiwanis Centennial Sportsman's Show on April 20, 21 and 22, at Esquimalt Sports Centre.
 In addition to a large display of outdoor sporting equipment, including everything for the fisherman, hunter and camper, a number of experts will be on hand to demonstrate various sporting skills.

Call Workout
 Any players interested in joining the Century Inn men's softball club, which is replacing Island Tug in the Heywood Avenue open league, are invited to workout tonight. It's at Macdonald Park, starts at 6.

Included in this group is Jim Gilbert who will show the correct methods of bait rigging, cutting and knot-tying. He will be present each evening and Saturday afternoon to also answer any questions on salt-water fishing.

ARCHERY INCLUDED
 Another sport represented will be archery, and members of the Victoria Bowmen will give instruction in techniques and allow the public to try their skill at targets set up at one end of the Sports Centre.

Hunters and trapshooters will also get the opportunity of trying out the new indoor range, known as "instantaneous shooting." And, for the golfing enthusiasts, local professionals will be present to give golfing tips for experts and duffers alike.

Peru to Send Games Team
 LIMA (AP)—Peru will participate in the Pan-American Games to be held in Winnipeg July 22 to August 7.

The Sports National Committee agreed Monday night to take part in the games. Soccer, swimming, volleyball, basketball, shooting and track and field are among the sports for which Peru will send competitors to the games.

Indian Uprising On Fairway
 PENTICTON, B.C. (CF)—An Indian woman has fenced off the number four fairway of the Penticton golf course in a dispute over a property lease.

Indian Agent G. H. Perret said Monday Mrs. Rachel Paul, owner of the property, took over the fairway during the weekend, claiming she needed it for farming.

Charles Hall, golf course president, said the Penticton Golf Club holds three five-year options on the Indian land.

"As far as I know the club is within its rights to take it down," said Mr. Hall. "If the fence isn't down now, we'll remove it."

Sunday Grey Cup Idea Appeals to McEachern
 VANCOUVER (CP)—The acting commissioner of the Canadian football league says he thinks the next Grey Cup game played here should be on a Sunday.

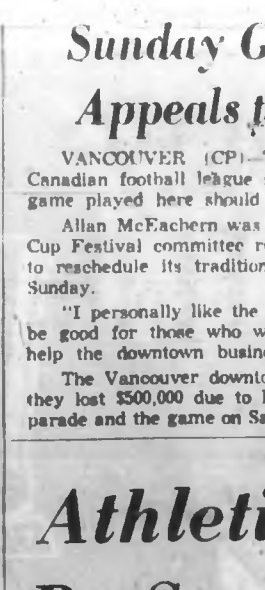

Allan McEachern was commenting on a Vancouver Grey Cup Festival committee recommendation that asks the CFL to reschedule its traditional Saturday afternoon game to a Sunday.

"I personally like the idea," McEachern said. "It would be good for those who work on Saturdays and would also help the downtown businessmen."

The Vancouver business association estimated they lost $500,000 due to last year's Friday night Grey Cup parade and the game on Saturday.

Athletic Switch By South Africa
 CAPE TOWN (AP)—In a bid to gain South Africa's re-admission to the Olympic Games, Premier John Vorster said Tuesday future South African Olympic contingents would be racially integrated and all members "would go under the South African flag."

At the same time, however, he told Parliament that inside South Africa racialized mixed sports would continue to be prohibited.

Yidnekatchew Tessema said Pretoria's latest bid to send a mixed team of African and non-African sportsmen to the next Olympic Games was a "farce."

"These sportsmen and women are not allowed to compete in their own country. Merits and recognitions of any kind, including in sports, are based on the individuals color of skin rather than his ability in the so-called free country of South Africa."

Tessema added that this latest South African bid is a deliberate attempt to hoodwink the world and misguide Afro-Asian opinion.

Philadelphia Sinks Celtics
 NEW YORK (AP)—They were off and running at Aqueduct Tuesday and the horsemen acted like there was no tomorrow as they hastened to cash in on a $15,000 daily increase in purses—a boost earned after they had refused for five days to enter their horses.

Although the entry list for Tuesday's nine races didn't close until 7 a.m., there were 103 entries with six scratches later in the morning. The horsemen followed up with 108 entries for today.

The normal entry list for Tuesday or a Wednesday runs between 70 and 80.

Another Shot For George?
 TORONTO (CF)—Negotiations are under way for a little fight between George Chuvalo of Toronto and world champion Cassius Clay, Irv Ungermann said Tuesday.

Ungermann, who manages the Canadian heavyweight champion, said nothing is settled, but he expects something is writing from the Clay camp within a day or two.

Clay, due for induction into the U.S. Army April 28, is scheduled to meet former champion Floyd Patterson in Las Vegas April 23.

Chances Title

Angelo Dundee said, "We don't know anything about that. We're here and just starting training."

Mel Greb, the Las Vegas promoter, commented, "I have nothing to say."

Clay, the champion, knocked out Patterson in the 12th round in a previous match in Las Vegas Nov. 22, 1965.

"At the time Clay indicated he carried Patterson for eight rounds," said Laxalt.

"Any new fight would create suspicion throughout the world," Nevada has to be careful because of its multi-million-dollar gambling industry and the natural tendency of people to be suspicious of what is done in the state.

The governor said the commission had made only a tentative agreement with the promoters for a licence and this could be rescinded without legal problems.

The champion arrived Tuesday. Patterson still is not here. In New York, Patterson announced plans to fly to Las Vegas today to finish his training.

The 32-year-old former champion said he was in good shape, and I would not be fighting if I didn't think I could win."

Clay said here, "Tell all the fans... that they may be looking at him (Clay) for the last time."

"Look and look close and remember me."

The 25-year-old champion is to report for induction into the army April 28.

OK.

Next time you're up at the lake and the peace and quiet is shattered by a screaming outboard—it isn't a '67 Johnson.

Our engineers are the only people that tell a Johnson to keep quiet. And they use fiberglass hoods, acoustic linings, silencers, rubber mounts, mufflers and knowhow to make sure it does.

A Johnson has so little to say you can conduct a normal conversation beside a 100 hp at full bore. Or slip away at 5 a.m. with a 6 hp and hardly wake a bird on the lake. This year there are 11 Johnsons to choose from, 100, 80, 60, 40, 33, 20, 15, 9½, 6, 5, and 3 horsepower. Each has a 2 year warranty and uses regular gas with a 50-to-1 oil mix. There are many other special features, of course, and your Johnson dealer will show you them all. Have a quiet chat with him soon.

Californians Invited To Visit B.C. Soon

LOS ANGELES (CP)—British Columbia officials and business leaders were visiting Los Angeles Tuesday, inviting American interest and investment.

Some 30 persons in B.C.'s government, chambers of commerce and travel and transportation industries were to appear at 25 service club meetings in Los Angeles. A smaller group from the province was in San Diego.

Attorney-General Bonner, in a talk to the San Pedro Rotary Club, extended an invitation to visit B.C. this year, during Canada's centennial celebration. The attorney-general reminded his audience of the close historical, personal and business relations Canada and the United States have had. And he said the two nations are "one another's best friends in an exceedingly complicated world."

Mr. Bonner invited American businessmen to come to his province to invest in industry.

"No one should be put off by critical remarks made in Canada about non-Canadian capital coming into the country," he said. "American capital has been a good citizen when it has come into Canada."

This was the same point voiced Monday by Labor Minister Peterson.

Bennett Evasive On Holiday Spot

Premier Bennett headed south Tuesday afternoon on a two-week holiday. He remained evasive about his destination and government business he may carry out while in the U.S.

He may go to Palm Springs or Santa Barbara, Calif., he said. Or it might be Scottsdale or Phoenix, Ariz. — "It depends on the weather."

And he dodged a question on whether he might pursue inquiries about underwater exploration.

MEETING EMPEROR
"Every place I go I look at certain situations," said the smiling premier. "I'm not saying any more."

He plans to return on or about April 24, in time to greet Ethiopia's Emperor, Haile Selassie, who arrives April 28.

Before his departure, the premier answered criticism from New Westminster of B.C.'s planned "superport" at Roberts Bank at the mouth of the Fraser River by saying the attack won't stop the project.

DUPLICATION
Fraser River harbor commissioner Chris Brown said last week the $25,000,000 idea would duplicate Vancouver and New Westminster facilities, leaving them idle.

Mr. Brown said he knew of several large firms which had suspended plans for developing industrial land on the Fraser

Spanish Church Demands New Freedom

MALAGA, Spain (UPI) — The Spanish Catholic church, long considered a bastion of conservatism, has issued a sweeping eight-point program calling for the establishment of an "authentic democracy" in Spain.

The document, the most detailed and precise statement on man's role in his society issued by the Spanish church since the civil war, was announced following a week-long meeting of the nation's Catholic hierarchy.

The meeting was Spain's 26th social week, held with Vatican endorsement.

The church document specifically stated all citizens had a right and a duty to participate in the public and political life of their nation.

"The realization and functioning of an authentic democracy, a concept which is so confused and ambiguous today demands... the incorporation of the people in the direction of their public life," the document said. The document said the "realization of the common good" also could not be "the exclusive responsibility of any one group or only of those governing."

"The members of all societies have the right and the responsibility to intervene in public life and to formulate means in which to take part in it," the document said.

"The flowering of the political community depends on such participation."

As a result the church said it was necessary to meet "the aspirations of many Spaniards" for progress toward the establishment of a "juridical-political order" that perfects "the respect of the rights of man, the right to free assembly, free association, the expression of individual opinions and the public and private practice of religion."

To meet these needs the church called for the establishment of the political-juridical institutions which would allow Spaniards to "participate in the establishment of the basic laws of state, in the formulation and control of public business, in the determination of the limits and functions of their institutions and in the election of their leaders."

Mini-Ban Ensured

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Pan-American Life Insurance Co. personnel department has sent this directive to female employees of its executive offices: "With the coming of warm weather, we find it necessary to remind all employees of proper office attire. To be quite honest, mini-style dresses and skirts are hardly the proper attire for maintaining a proper business atmosphere."

Swift Vote

Strike On Siding

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress approved Tuesday a resolution President Johnson asked to head off a U.S. railway strike set for midnight tonight.

The machinery was set in motion to rush the document to Johnson for his signature in Punta del Este, Uruguay, where he is meeting with the chiefs of state of the Latin American leaders.

FOR 30 DAYS
The Senate voted 81 to 1 and the House of Representatives 336 to 8 to pass a resolution to extend for 30 days until May 3 the no-strike period in the railway shopcraft dispute.

Members of the six unions now average about $2.50 an hour and skilled machinists earn up to $3.04 an hour. The unions seek a seven-per-cent increase and the carriers have offered five.

Cool-Off Ruling Demanded

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Pressure increased Tuesday for Washington to use the Taft-Hartley law to end a lockout of Teamsters union members by major U.S. trucking firms.

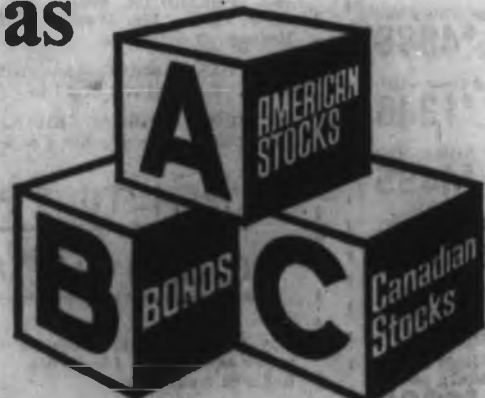

But there were rising hopes that the dispute over a new work contract could be settled at the bargaining table. The old contract expired March 31.

SOME PROGRESS
While the effects of the shutdown were beginning to be felt in the nation's economy, some "movement" was reported in contract talks between the union and Trucking Employers Inc.

The carriers, which employ 250,000 teamsters, ordered the lockout at midnight Saturday in retaliation to a series of "selective strikes" staged by the union across the country.

Under the Taft-Hartley law, Johnson could order the truckers to resume operations during an 80-day "cooling off" period.

Oysters Saved From Oil

ST. BRIEUC, France (Reuters) — Fishermen started Tuesday to move millions of young oysters from hundreds of acres of cultivation beds threatened by oil from the sunken tanker Torrey Canyon. The oysters were being taken by truck from Brittany on the English Channel to the shore facing the Atlantic as oil continues to sweep along the French coast.

Lettuce Smoke On Way

TORONTO (CP) — Cigarettes made from lettuce leaves will be available by the end of the month to Ontario smokers who want to give up tobacco.

The "100 per cent nicotine-free" smokes will be distributed by Toronto-based Oshawa Wholesale Ltd. They'll cost 49 cents for a 20-cigarette pack.

"We don't expect to revolutionize the smoking habits of Ontario, but smokers who are having trouble quitting can use the lettuce cigarettes to ease off tobacco," a spokesman said Tuesday.

NEED OBVIOUS

"The need for family life, education and family planning is essential," the report observes. There was a marked decrease in the number of cases of syphilis in 1966, Dr. Whitbread's statement adds, although the number of gonorrhea cases showed an increase from 130 to 212.

Other communicable diseases remained at a fairly low level during 1966, the report adds. Infectious hepatitis declined, but it might have been because patients did not report mild cases.

AIR CLEANER

There was a marked decrease in air pollution during the year, the report showed, mainly because beehive burners were no longer in use.

Dr. Whitbread referred to the recent discussions which will probably culminate in the metropolitan board of health being brought under control of the regional district.

Increasing population without the addition of necessary public health staff would lead to a decline in services, and it was hoped that when the health board was brought under a

Recalcitrant Socreds Ousted

EDMONTON (CP) — Three men, including the constituency president, were expelled from the Social Credit party Monday during a tumultuous meeting at which Ethel Wilson was renominated as candidate for Edmonton North in the next provincial election.

Mrs. Wilson, a minister without portfolio in Premier Manning's government, has represented the constituency since 1959.

Constituency president Bill McNeill, Art Parker and Ed Andrews were expelled by Orvis Kennedy, president of the Social Credit League of Alberta, when they refused to withdraw after being nominated to contest the seat against Mrs. Wilson, who was then declared the unanimous choice.

Charges Coming

Fumes Empty Bus

Two teen-age boys will be charged in juvenile court in connection with a tear gas explosion on a Saanich school bus Tuesday.

Fourteen girls were treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for nausea, headaches and stomach cramps after the bomb went off in the bus on Royal Oak Avenue near the Patricia Bay Highway.

Police later said two of the passengers, aged 15 and 16, will be charged with public mischief.

BUS HELD 50
About 50 Royal Oak Junior secondary school pupils were in the bus which became filled with fumes when the device exploded.

Bus driver Ed Proctor said the fumes blurred his vision and made him gasp for breath. He pulled the vehicle to the side of the road, where the whole load of coughing students piled out through the front door and rested on a nearby lawn.

'TERRIFIC BANG'
"There was a terrific bang and the fumes hit immediately," Mr. Proctor said.

Saanich police said the capsule, about an inch long, is believed to be of military origin. It was not clear whether it had been exploded deliberately or not.

One of the victims, a young girl, said she heard a "pop, and everyone began coughing."

TWO BOYS HURT
Another said students at the back of the bus had a hard time getting out because everyone panicked.

Police who arrived quickly at the scene said two boys were treated for cuts caused by the broken tear gas capsule.

Thugs Rob Jewelry Store

Woman Clerk, 60, Savagely Beaten

By JIM BRAHAN

Three young thugs brutally battered a 60-year-old woman store clerk unconscious in a Blanshard Street jewelry store shortly before 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and stole two watches and $50 in cash.

Mrs. Queen Victoria Wilkins, alone in the store at the time of the robbery, was in fairly good condition in St. Joseph's hospital suffering severe head wounds.

"They hit her when she was putting the watches away," said store owner Roy Hebden, and explained he had left the store at 1006 Blanshard about 45 minutes before the robbery.

YOUNG, 'ROUGH'
He said Mrs. Wilkins called police when she regained consciousness and described the hoodlums as being in their late teens or early 20s and "roughly dressed."

The three men entered the shop supposedly to buy a railwayman's watch, according to the owner, and attacked the elderly clerk while she was at the rear of the store near the watch rack.

"By the amount of blood splattered around the back of the store it must have been a particularly vicious attack," Mr. Hebden said, and pointed out there was blood on the floor, all over the rear counter, and also spotted on the wall and telephone.

SLIPPED IN BLOOD
Mr. Hebden said one of the thugs slipped in the blood on the floor when leaving.

He said the clerk must have been just closing up and had put the $50 in the store safe but had not locked the door.

"I had taken most of the money home with me when I left earlier, and had only left the $50 in the store with Mrs. Wilkins."

He said the trio took the cash and the two watches valued at $150 each, but did not touch any of the jewelry.

Saanich Reeve Tees Off On Cocktail Party Plea

By A. H. MURPHY

In the shadow of what will probably be the toughest tax year this district has ever faced, intermunicipal representatives sat down Tuesday to deal with the annual pleas for money.

At the end of a 2½-hour session they had doled out about $76,000 in grants, tax allowances and other allotments from the public purse. (See story Page 20.)

In most instances the cost of grants will be shared on an intermunicipal formula basis (Victoria, 40.4 per cent; Saanich, 37.1; Oak Bay, 13.5, and Esquimalt, 8.8) but in some cases Victoria will bear the heavier burden.

One of these was a grant to the Bastion Theatre. Of the $10,000 allotted, $7,500 will be shared intermunicipally and $2,500 contributed by the city.

Another was the Maritime Museum of B.C. Victoria will raise $4,000 toward a grant of $7,000 and the remainder will be shared by members of the intermunicipal committee.

There was only one point of direct conflict during discussion and that arose over a request for help from the Royal Canadian Golf Association.

Almost Barred from Bar

"Well, I've been able to rationalize the left-handed golfers' and what happened to that event with support for this Commonwealth tourney, but it's taken some doing," said Reeve Allan Cox of Oak Bay, who added that previous opposition to the grant had almost meant excommunication from the bar of his own golf club.

"Well, I feel strongly about this and would even recommend to my council that we pick up the whole bill, if necessary," said Mayor Stephen.

Reeve Cox and Reeve Ray Bryant of Esquimalt said they would take recommendations back to their councils.

When the question of a grant for the Maritime Museum came up, Reeve Cox said he did not consider it as important as the allocation of $10,000 for the art gallery.

"It's nice to be able to spend money on our history but right now we're having a hell of a time keeping up with the present," said the reeve, harking back to the earlier discussion on increased tax rates in every quarter of the region.

A request for $30,000 in lieu of property taxes, made by the YM-YWCA, evoked the observation that the directors might do well to raise membership fees.

City Treasurer James Bramley said fees had been raised following a similar request last year.

It was the same old story, said A.H. Geoffrey Edgewood. The community put up the money for big, ornate buildings and then seemed to be stuck for paying the taxes. He didn't want to see the "Y" turn into a rich man's club, but thought that an $18-a-year fee for young people was more than a little low.

Saanich did not contribute to the YMCA grant last year, but Reeve Curtis will take the matter back to his council again.

Meanwhile, the grant was settled at $16,300.

Traffic Victims Still 'Poor'

Two men injured in a traffic accident Sunday night at Trans-Canada Highway and Millstream Road remained in poor condition in St. Joseph's Hospital late Tuesday.

Walter Jatkowski, 2404 Cook, received severe head injuries and Victor Martin, 730 Russell, suffered back injuries.

Hangars 'Bargain' For B.C.

The provincial government has bought two aircraft hangars at Patricia Bay airport for $150,000, Works Minister Chant announced Tuesday.

Up till now, the government leased space in the hangars for its eight aircraft, including Highway Minister Gagliardi's new-making Lear Jet.

Mr. Chant said excess space will now be leased by the government to other aircraft owners.

"We got a very good buy," he said. "The replacement cost would be several times what we paid."

The hangars were built during the Second World War.

Private Hospitals

Food Planning, Nursing Care Still on Spot

Nutritional standards and staff arrangements in local private hospitals should be improved, the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health maintains.

A board meeting Tuesday urged immediate action. The medical health officer, the director of nursing and a health inspector have visited hospitals during the past four years and will continue to make inspections, with particular emphasis on the preparation of meals and nursing care, the board was told.

THEATRE PLANNED
A copy of the report which followed the inspections of hospitals will be forwarded to Health Minister Wesley Black.

The survey was made following complaints to the board about hospital conditions in the area. Another recommendation which will be sent to Mr. Black urges that rehabilitation programs be carried out in all private hospitals.

Patients should be given continuing physical therapy by the hospital staffs, working under

Public vs. Private Collection

Saanich Is Heading For Garbage Hassle

By JOHN MATTERS

All members of Saanich council will probably be in a hassle next week over public vs. private enterprise.

This was indicated Tuesday night when council's public works committee sent to full council for discussion the question of what should be done about garbage collections.

It appears about half of council wants the municipality to take over garbage collections, now handled by a private contractor. Other members think the chore could be handled more efficiently by private enterprise.

Saanich council has only a month to make up its mind. If a new contractor is going to get the job, starting next Jan. 1, he will need several months to assemble the necessary equipment.

Saanich has received only one bid — from Prairie Enterprises Ltd., which would charge $20 per household for weekly service the whole year, and $18 per household for twice-weekly service except between June and September, when it would be weekly.

This would cost the municipality $367,000 a year, compared to $308,000 if the municipality went into the business itself.

DIVISION
Coun. Edith Gunning and Coun. William Noel wanted Saanich to take over collections, while Coun. Leslie Passmore and Coun. Alan Newberry thought it would be a job best done by a private contractor.

"We must move ahead, and now is the time for decision," said Coun. Gunning. "The collections should be weekly and handled by the municipality. I realize this is a job at a time when all the costs are going up."

Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe also indicated garbage collections should be handled by Saanich crews, a service that would be charged to general

REPORT COMING
Mrs. Wilson said the provincial allowance of $230 a month for welfare patients in private hospitals was not enough to maintain them and that proprietors were anxious to get rid of them.

Along with Coun. Edith Gunning of Saanich, Mrs. Wilson interviewed authorities in the provincial government on the matter. She will present a report on the interview at the regular meeting of city council Thursday.

The report of the hospital survey had never been made public.

The 4th Tairlip Scouts and Cubs will hold a car wash and bottle drive this month to finance improvements to the Scout hall on West Saanich Road.

Kodaly Protege Handed Baton

The Victoria Symphony Society's board of directors Tuesday night chose Hungarian-born Laszlo Gati as the new conductor of the city symphony orchestra, pending the completion of satisfactory contract arrangements.

Mr. Gati was one of five guest conductors during the season just ended. The others were Harold Bauer, Harold Faberman, Gregory Miller and Harry Newstone, although only Mr. Bauer and Mr. Gati were considered serious competitors.

The directors' choice, a protege of the late Hungarian composer Zoltan Kodaly, began violin studies at the age of five.

He has been a violinist with the Hungarian State Philharmonic, conductor of choir and orchestra at the University of Economics in Budapest, professor of violin at the Budapest Conservatory and head of the Radio Hungary symphonic and chamber music department.

Kahn-Chapman

Bride's Father Officiates

Cherie Jeanne Chapman, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Theodore W. Chapman, 2848 Kwonik Way, became the bride of Mr. Clive William Kahn at a recent wedding ceremony in Christian and Missionary Alliance Church. The groom is the son of Mrs. Kahn, 510 William Street, and the late Mr. William Kahn.

The bride's father and Rev. William Goetz officiated at the evening ceremony. Mrs. Peggy Wilton Packard, soloist, sang the Lord's Prayer and Hallel's Wedding Prayer.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of white ligoda featuring an empire style bodice in Chantilly lace. A detachable court train fell gracefully from her shoulders and a floral headpiece held her tiered veil of silk illusion net. She carried a cascade of white carnations and yellow roses.

Mrs. Bruce Chapman, bride's sister-in-law as matron-of-honor, Miss Doris Kahn, groom's sister as maid of honor; Mrs. Russell Boyd, bride-matron, and Miss Fern Chapman, bride's cousin as bridesmaid, were groomed alike in floor-length dresses of pale yellow peau de saie. The gowns were styled with empire waists and each featured a train which fell from the deep V neckline in back. They wore headresses in tone and carried white tulips with yellow ribbons.

Miss Patty MacDuff was the little flower girl. She wore a similarly styled gown in white and carried a basket of yellow daisies.

Master Gregory Arnett was ringbearer.

Mr. Bruce Chapman, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushering guests to their seats were Mr. Brian Chapman, broide's brother; Mr. Russell Boyd and Mr. Bob Arnett. Rev. Goetz was master of ceremonies at the reception which followed in the banquet room of the Strathcona Hotel, and Mr. Arthur Chapman proposed the toast to his niece. Mr. and Mrs. George McCorrah sang a duet, accompanied by Mr. Bob Arnett on the accordion, and Mr. John Young gave a violin solo and was accompanied by Mr. Paul Young.

For travelling up-island the new Mrs. Kahn wore a turquoise print dress in chiffon and accessories in tone. A white top coat complemented her ensemble.

The newlyweds are now making their home in the Royal Arms Apartment, Yates Street.

An unusual counter can give style to your kitchen as well as providing dining comfort. The counter can be small, designed for two people only, or it can be large enough for a whole lineup of diners. Either way, the shape of the top and the stools or chairs chosen should be planned with beauty in mind. Take advantage, too, of the decorating possibilities offered by the cabinets above the counter top. In this family kitchen, wooden spoons, in varying sizes, make an unusual trim for back of suspended cabinets. Dining counter is high enough to screen view of food-preparation areas from visitors seated in the adjoining family room.—(Better Homes and Gardens)

Inside Fashion

Is War Paint Coming Back?

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

NEW YORK — Rudi Gernreich, one of the world's great fashion innovators — he took the top from the bathing suit, the stuffings from the bra, and replaced girdles with decorated tights — is in a mood to do something about makeup too.

A possible connection with Coty is in the serious talking stage, Coty executives say. A final agreement will make Rudi fashion consultant for the firm's cosmetics.

It is the agreement goes through, it is fraught with terrific overtones. It means that whole thing as beatnik or to face," said a fashion model. Coty, a firm with a long-standing reputation and a war paint because anything and leisurely, classical approach, young and oldbeat is certain to know that the same youth revolution that hit fashion a slightly more elegant form.

While back has landed on cosmetics like an A-bomb. It also means that the average woman, if there is such an animal, will follow Rudi, though cautiously, into the business of doing more painting and decorating to her face, just as she has come along with him slowly but surely in fashion.

At the Fashion Institute of Technology's retrospective show of his fashions the other night, Rudi's favorite model, Peggy Moffitt, was wearing her usual extraordinary eyes. They were outlined in slanted-up lines and illuminated faintly.

Even if the trend hasn't hit the benefit ball crowd yet, anyone who has been out and around knows that plenty of experimenting is going on. At all the arty parties, Tiger Moore is in evidence, wearing butterflies or peacock feathers pasted on her cheeks, or a lipstick as yellow as a fisherman's slicker. Take Twiggy's lower eyelashes, painted on slantwise and standing out amusingly in the photographs of her little face. It takes her an hour to draw them on just right.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Where do you get off saying all 16-year-old boys are interested in sex? I am 16 and I am interested in lots of things, but sex is not one of them.

I am getting sick and tired of hearing you tell girls to be careful because every boy is out to get whatever he can. I'm not, and I am sure there must be other guys around just like me.

Females make up about one half of the world's population and there must be some awfully nice people in this group. One of these days I'd like to get to know some of these people better, but I am in no hurry.

There are plenty of interesting things fellows my age can do besides chasing girls. So please stop telling people that every 16-year-old boy is trying to trap some innocent chick in the back seat of a car. As a matter of fact, some guys I know have had to fight off girls. Please set the record straight. And you can print my name and city if you want to — KANSAS.

Dear Kansas: I wouldn't dare print your name and city. YOU'D be deluged by calls, fella. Not from girls, but from their mothers! You sound like the kind of guy every teenage girl's mother is looking for.

It would be foolish to say ALL 16-year-old boys are interested in sex. What I said was, "Most teen-age boys are not thinking about love. The juices are flowing and they are becoming mighty curious." That statement still stands.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has taken a job with a fine organization. It means more money and an opportunity for advancement. The only problem is the plant is located in a small town which I hate. I have told my husband I am not moving.

The major factor in my decision not to pull up stakes is my parents. I am an only child and my folks are very dear to me. They are in good health and I want to enjoy them as long as I can.

I know many women whose husbands travel during the week and come home weekends. My husband could do this, too. But he is stubbornly opposed to my staying here. Who is wrong? — BLUE GRASS TROUBLE

Dear Trouble: You are. If your parents were ill and you had to help care for them it would be a different matter, but refusing to move to the city where your husband makes his living because you want to enjoy mama and papa's company is not only selfish. It is childish.

Wives like you are the first to scream "The Louse" when a husband becomes involved with another woman. Hang onto my address, I think you may be writing again soon with another kind of problem.

Confidential to Starred To Death: No one can force you to marry the girl against your will. Furthermore, if I understand your letter correctly, you are still married to "Mona Lisa."

From the description you give of "Mudience's" father you would be lucky if the parole officer got to you first. You need a lawyer.

Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Taylor, 3557 Kelsey Place, announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Elizabeth to James Frederick Forward, son of Inspector N. F. Forward, RCMP and Mrs. Forward, Yorkton, Sask. The wedding will take place on Friday, May 5 at 7 p.m. in St. Paul's Naval and Garrison Church with Rev. J. A. Roberts officiating. —(Campbell Studio)

A Beauty Hint

Margaret Merrill advises that it is quite simple for every woman to promote an English countryside complexion. Her hint to gain a peachy-and-cream loveliness is to damp a cloth with cold water from your refrigerator and press it over your face for a few minutes once or twice a day. Then, to hold the good of the complexion — beautiful cold water, smooth on tropical oil of Olay. This oil is rather scarce and expensive, but your drug store should be able to get you a small supply.

Pollution Control Plan

Human Waste Advocated For Fertilizer Conversion

The Esquimalt-Victoria Royal Anti-Smoke Committee Tuesday night suggested human effluent be used to keep parks green.

In a letter to Saanich council, the committee — which also announced it has been renamed the Capital Region Pollution Control Committee — argued that sewage should be treated so it could be used as fertilizer.

"What we get from the land we should return," said the letter, which also suggested all garbage except glass and metallic objects be composted.

The committee thought the ideal place for salvaged sewage and garbage wastes would be public parks.

Neville Lide, Saanich's municipal engineer, said the suggestions have been studied in a number of areas and in almost every case it has been found they are uneconomical.

He said Vernon tried to salvage sewage wastes as fertilizer but it was found uneconomical. In any case, the municipality still was confronted with problems of garbage disposal.

John D Stabs at Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday the Liberal party had new-found love for senior military officers.

As Conservative prime minister, other wagging fingers over the support between 1957 and 1963, he facts of the 1959 decision to had conducted witchhunts in the cancel the Avro Arrow fighter Hellyer had stated he would senior military establishment program.

"One wonders whether the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was straightening out Canada because we (the Conservatives) dared to stand," he added during the Commons debate on armed forces unification.

Mr. Diefenbaker, entering the seven-day-old debate for the first time, said the Liberals are hell-bent on pushing through unification so that Defence Minister Hellyer can attend Expo with 400 green-apparelled men.

CLOSURE AGAIN?

The Liberals had brought in the maple leaf flag by closure and they intended to use the same method with unification.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted extensively from an article written in 1963 by Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who became justice minister in the Pearson cabinet last week.

He said Mr. Trudeau had referred to Mr. Pearson in 1963 as the "unrocked priest of peace" because he had reversed Liberal policy on nuclear weapons.

ALLIED WITH U.S.

He quoted Mr. Trudeau as saying that the Liberals in the 1963 election were allied with the U.S. administration against the Diefenbaker government and that Mr. Pearson had betrayed the program of his party.

"What idiots they are," Mr. Trudeau had written of the Liberals, Mr. Diefenbaker said. Mr. Diefenbaker then turned on Mr. Hellyer, saying he has deceived Parliament, "put a clipper on the lip of anybody who said anything critical and removed it from those who joined in the Hallelujah chorus."

HELLYER HITS BACK

Mr. Hellyer had engaged in a campaign of denigration against people who dared to have opinions contrary to his own.

As soon as Mr. Diefenbaker was finished, he said Mr. Diefenbaker had not given a single example of his alleged deception.

"Where is his sense of British justice? Where is his regard for the bill of rights?"

The minister said he was as-and had a well-known fear of Mr. Diefenbaker's military men.

The two men stood across the advice of his chiefs of staff, Mr. Diefenbaker said he had their support.

Commons floor from one of Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Hellyer had stated he would save "millions and millions."

Canada Losing Face in France

OTTAWA (CP)—If ever a country has owed much to Canada, it is France, John Diefenbaker said Tuesday in the Commons.

The blood of Canada had poured out at Vimy Ridge but no senior representative of France had attended the 50th anniversary observance of the battle Sunday.

"Surely there must be some reason for this loss of face of Canada in France," he said.

but the defence budget this year was up by $115,000,000.

"You cannot deceive Parliament."

"WILL LEAD WORLD"

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Hellyer also had to apologize to Rear-Admiral William Landy after condemning him as guilty of treachery.

Mr. Hellyer said unification will produce a force for the 1970s that will be able to meet any demand placed on it. "Canada, insofar as military organization is concerned, will be leading the world."

Canadian Collieries' Shipping Terminal Goes Far Back

By JOHN MOORE

UNION BAY — Red flames against the night sky over Union Bay tell of the final chapter of what was once the most important industrial complex in the Comox Valley and a vital element in the economy of B.C.

Work crews of contractor M. D. Cole have been busy for months with the job of demolishing the structures and buildings of the old Canadian Collieries shipping terminal at Union Bay. The work now is in its final stages.

In 1888 the Dunsmuir family extended its empire into the Comox Valley and chose the tree-shrouded bay where Hart Creek runs into Baynes Sound to be the shipping point for coal from the developing mines in the Cumberland area.

Shipments of coal started from the new port in 1889 and the name of Union Bay became known in shipping offices around the world.

The Dunsmuir family had its own fleet of ships carrying coal to San Francisco and Comox coal quickly acquired the reputation of being the finest steam coal available on the west coast of North America.

In 1910 the Dunsmuir family sold its interests to Canadian Collieries Ltd.

Flame Outlined Against Sky In Final Stage

Harmac Situation Worsens As 13 May Be Suspended

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Apprehension about the firing of 13 men at Harmac was well founded. Tuesday a spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel announced the men would be suspended from their job by next week in accordance with the request by the International Brotherhood of Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers union last week. The men may reinstate themselves with the Pulp Sulphite union and keep their job, however.

ONEIROUS POSITION — "We take this step with regret effective next Tuesday. Since it is only the result of a jurisdictional dispute, it is totally beyond the control of the company," said the spokesman. "In the meantime the company will request the provincial department of labor to examine that clause in the contract which covers the point in question to determine whether the men must be suspended. The company is caught in an onerous position through no fault of its own, but solely due to rivalry between two unions," he added.

He referred to the company's desire to abide by the contract with the union, and the laws of the province, but added that the company had no wish to see the mill "go down" due to suspensions.

Without direct reference, his statement echoed the feelings of many connected with Harmac and the two-union dispute.

Members of both unions feel once the 13 men have been suspended, it will be a "foot in the door" for a request to suspend others.

Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Local 8 has claimed to have over 90 per cent of the employees as members.

These members have not been paying dues to the Pulp Sulphite union, and therefore would be subject to suspensions on the same basis as the 13 men whose jobs now are in jeopardy.

Intervention in Strike Can't Be Confirmed

ZEBALLOS — Labor Minister Leslie Peterson was unavailable Tuesday to comment on a report that he had been asked to intervene in the Zeballos Iron Mines strike.

About 100 members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers went on strike Sunday over safety arrangements in the underground workings.

A union spokesman said four men have been seriously injured recently. Mr. Peterson left Victoria on Saturday for Los Angeles and is not expected back until April 22.

The official bargaining agent for the men is the Three-Way Pact — Tunnel and Rock Workers, Teamsters and Operating Engineers.

They took over from Mine Mill, which is trying to get certification back. It is understood Mr. Peterson was asked to order a vote among the men to see which union group the men wanted to be represented by.

Hemmingsen Rites Thursday

Woods Pioneer Dies

The man who introduced high lead logging to British Columbia, Mathias Hemmingsen, died in Victoria Monday. He was 90.

Mr. Hemmingsen introduced the technique while superintendent of the Victoria Lumbering and Manufacturing Co. in the early 1900s.

By 1912, all logging companies in B.C. were using the system. Mr. Hemmingsen was born in Wisconsin in 1876.

Later in life he helped his civil engineer father build logging roads, and gradually drifted into the logging business.

He won the reputation of being a top river driver and in 1906 he was sent by J. A. Humbird to superintend logging of the company's vast holdings on Vancouver Island, and its mill at Chemainus.

He was active in the logging business for all but five years during the depression, when he went mining.

Disaster Victims

Compensation 'Disgraceful'

PORT ALBERNI — Compensation provision for disaster victims is disgraceful, according to a union official.

"It is disgraceful that the inadequacies of the Workmen's Compensation Act are such that it requires the contributions of the public to provide for disaster victims," said Maurice Corbell.

He is secretary-treasurer of the Alberni and District Labor Council.

Mr. Corbell said the labor council sent a $100 cheque to the Natal disaster fund.

He urged other unions to follow suit.

Neither is the group completely happy about the decision of the provincial government to contribute $25,000 to the disaster fund, unless it plans to change previous policies.

"By making this contribution, the provincial government has acknowledged responsibility toward the families of those men who were killed on the job," Mr. Corbell said.

Licence Request Refused

NANAIMO — Concern for highway safety and the mounting weekend death tolls has resulted in stiffer court sentences.

Magistrate Eric Finch said Monday he is seriously reconsidering his former attitude of allowing people to retain their licences for work, after their licences have been suspended.

William Thomas Winderke, 21, of 25 Stewart Avenue, pleaded guilty to driving without due care and attention on Sunday. He said his job in a service station would require he have a valid driving licence. He was fined $35 and his licence was suspended for five months.

This, he felt, was the real danger.

The solution is simple, he said.

He maintained the government should have a supervised vote by the men to determine which union they want.

"The government should act now," he stressed.

Mountain Inspection Eye-Opener

Maple Logging Exonerated

By KLAUS MUENTER

NORTH COWICHAN — Members of the North Cowichan council had an eye-opener when they went up Maple Mountain Tuesday morning.

Following several complaints about desecrating logging in that area councillors and municipal public works superintendent Perry Ross were led by the municipality's consulting forester Frank Rainford through one of the most enchanting areas of North Cowichan.

Walking along logging roads, climbing through thick underbrush and resting at a picturesque man-made lake, the problem was studied on the spot.

Forester Rainford said most of the charges from ratepayers arise because people are not aware Maple Mountain is not logged off but the method is selective patch logging which does not interfere with the beautiful scenery.

To underline his defence for the logging he brought up several points.

He said it opens up old logging roads creating access for hikers and riders, it creates forest land for reproduction and it earns the municipality revenue.

During the past three years 2,500,000 board feet of timber has been taken out.

Mr. Rainford stressed the establishment of four water holes on Maple Mountain serves two very important purposes — it gives game a drinking source during the hot season and it simplifies fire protection.

People are ignorant of the fact the park has not been desecrated. Nature itself will replenish itself.

He said gates have been installed to protect woodlot operators and close the woods during the fire season.

In some cases wood thieves drove into the operations and cut up merchantable logs for fuel.

Council members, while touring the Maple Mountain area were told much of the unsightly mess along roads has either been caused by heavy snow or windfall or when the first roads were built many years ago. Everything will be cleaned up eventually.

Victoria Day Parade Short of Clowns

Clowns, clowns and more clowns are needed for the big Victoria Day parade.

It was suggested to a general meeting Tuesday of the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association that clowns should be approached to enter a group to act as clowns. The idea would be to establish a steady force of clowns which could be available every year.

Volunteers for clowns in this year's parade should get in touch with the celebrations committee at city hall. The best one will get a prize this year.

It was doubtful that horse groups would be entering the parade this year; a horseman told the meeting.

Apparent reason for the reluctance of horse groups to enter is that in past years they were placed too close to the end of the parade.

The meeting also learned:

● Baton-twirling applications had been received from as far away as Salem, Ore.

● The soap box race put on by the Elks Club is painfully undermanned, and Elks are looking for more entries.

● Members of the Victoria

Motor Cycle Club did not wish to wear helmets in their entry in the parade. They made representation to the chief of police last year and were granted permission to leave helmets off during that parade.

Kills Marines

EAGLESHAM, Scotland (AP)—A motorist ran into a column of 14 Royal Marines marching along a country lane, killing one and severely injuring six others. The car was badly damaged but its driver was not hurt.

They are hoping to follow this procedure again.

The breakwater at Oak Bay Marina is being used as a dumping ground for surplus fill from Oak Bay municipal excavations.

It will be used in this way until the car park is slowly extended toward the end of the breakwater.

Oak Bay's works committee also decided to:

● Ask the Capital Improvement District Commission to consider carrying out improvements to the intersection of Beach Drive and King George Terrace, at an estimated cost of $3,902.

● Purchase a new garbage truck for $8,954.

Little Nation Bigger Army

VADUZ, Lichtenstein (UPI)—The government of Lichtenstein has agreed to increase its armed forces by 33 per cent, from 21 to 28 men and two police dogs.

Greater Victoria school trustees will be testing the efficiency of one of their teachers Monday.

The Grade 12 foods class at Victoria high school has invited the board to dinner.

Board chairman Peter Bunn said Tuesday that the students would be preparing dinner before next Monday's board meeting.

Special guest will be Frank Beinder, president of the provincial trustees' association, who will later address the regular board meeting.

He Gave Blood Flood

Archie Mooradian gave his 89th pint of blood to the Red Cross Tuesday. Average person has 13 to 14 pints of blood in his body, so that's enough for six complete transfusions. There were 259 donors at Tuesday's clinic. Thursday students at Claremont senior high school will sponsor clinic at the school from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 to 3:30 p.m.—(Jim Ryan)

Accused in Stabbing Sent to Riverview

NELSON (CP)—A Spanish immigrant, Jesus Yepes-Buitrago, 36, charged with the stabbing of Dr. R. B. Shaw here Monday, was found unfit to stand trial and committed to Riverview Mental Hospital for treatment.

Dr. Shaw, stabbed several times with a 12-inch butcher knife, during a tussle in his office, was released from Kootenay Lake General Hospital in "good condition" Tuesday.

Sulphate Boon 'Untrue'

A University of Victoria biologist Tuesday night said it's untrue copper-laden tailings drained into freshwater lakes help support plant and animal life.

Brian Case was challenging a statement by C. M. Campbell, general manager of Western Mines Ltd., who said earlier: "B.C. water lacks certain essential growth such as minute quantities of copper—the mine tailings are providing them."

The biologist said the survival rates of fish and insects decline as concentrations of copper sulphate increase.

Mr. Case cited a study made by two graduating students at the University of Victoria. By killing insect larva, the copper ions eliminate an important element of the food chain for fish.

The copper ions, according to the study, impair the respiratory functions of insects and fish.

Summit

Police Aim Gas

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (Reuters) — Students protesting a Western Hemisphere summit conference here barricaded themselves in Montevideo University Tuesday night as police charged them, firing into the air and carrying tear gas grenades.

Some 400 students hurled stones at police, who were reinforced by truckloads of steel-helmeted military police. They surrounded the university — which local law forbids them to enter.

THREE-DAY MEET
The clashes began earlier Tuesday evening as President Johnson and 10 Latin American heads of state arrived for the first full-scale summit meeting of Western Hemisphere leaders. They joined six other leaders already in the resort of Punta del Este, 50 miles from the capital of Montevideo. In all, 19 heads of state were expected for the three-day summit.

Police in riot trucks moved in when the demonstrations started Tuesday morning. Students hurled stones while the police replied with tear gas and night-stick charges. Three demonstrators were reported injured.

What Delay?

Home Grant List At 2,000 Already

By BILL STAYDAL
Legislative Reporter

Two thousand prospective home buyers have already applied for B.C.'s new $500 grant, deputy finance minister G. S. Bryson said Tuesday. And the government has sent out 24,000 application forms, said Mr. Bryson in conversation with Premier Bennett.

The premier invited a press conference to listen in on a telephone conversation with Mr. Bryson after it was suggested that payment of the home-acquisition grants was being delayed.

The last session of the legislature passed a bill approving payment of $500 to first-time buyers or builders of homes within B.C. The legislation is retroactive to April 1, 1966. "The response has been a lot more than I figured," Mr. Bryson told the premier.

He said a backlog of applications was being processed. Inquiries addressed to Victoria government offices have been averaging 1,000 a day since the legislation was passed, he said.

WITHIN WEEK
"The first cheques will be going out in a week," said Mr. Bryson. He said there would be about 100 in the initial mailing. One reason they aren't going out faster is that each application must be checked through the land registry office, he added.

Mrs. Vanier Council First

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Pauline Vanier was sworn in Tuesday as a member of the Privy Council of Canada on the eve of her departure from the capital.

The honor was the first ever to be conferred on a Canadian woman other than cabinet members, was made to the wife of the late Governor General George Vanier.

"Madame Vanier has a place in the hearts of all Canadians equalled only by that of her late husband," Prime Minister Pearson said in making the announcement. "She was one half of a perfect partnership that served all Canadians."

Featherstone

MAP-GRAB VERDICT: GUILTY BUT NO SPY

OTTAWA (CP)—Bower Featherstone was found guilty Tuesday of one charge under the Official Secrets Act, and acquitted on a second charge.

The jury of 11 men and one woman found the 28-year-old government lithographer guilty of a charge of obtaining two copies of a confidential navy chart that might be useful to Soviet submarines.

He was found not guilty of retaining the two charts for a purpose prejudicial to the safety of the state between Feb. 13 and Oct. 25 last year.

SENTENCE APRIL 14
Judge Peter Macdonald remanded Featherstone in custody until April 24 at 10 a.m. for sentencing. The conviction carries a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison.

The jury returned to the Carleton County courtroom at 4 p.m. after deliberating for three hours and 10 minutes at the end of a six-day trial.

The judge told the jury that in his opinion they had reached the proper conclusion.

CLARIFICATION
The jury earlier interrupted deliberation after an hour and 40 minutes to ask Judge Macdonald to clarify the section of the Official Secrets Act referring to "a purpose prejudicial to the safety of the state."

The judge said the act puts the onus on the accused to show that he had an innocent purpose if and when he kept a secret government document.

He said that the normal onus on the Crown to prove an offence is reversed in the Official Secrets Act in connection with the purpose of the accused.

NOT CROWN'S JOB
There was no obligation for the Crown to prove that Featherstone acted with an illegal purpose when he retained two copies of a confidential navy chart printed in the mapping branch of the energy department where he was employed.

The jury foreman said this was the point that confused the jurors.

The Official Secrets Act was passed after the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939 to protect the federal government against espionage. Each conviction under the act carries a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison.

Labor Losing County Votes

LONDON (AP) — The ruling Labor party suffered losses Tuesday in first results from week-long county elections.

Mitchell

Condemned Killer Tries To Cheat Electric Chair

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — The condemned slayer of a policeman made an apparent suicide attempt Tuesday, 21 hours before he was scheduled to become the first criminal executed in the United States for more than a year.

Aaron C. Mitchell, 37, slashed his left forearm with a razor blade shortly after his sobbing mother had visited him on Death Row.

The condemned man had told her, "Mama, maybe it's too late."

LATE APPEAL
Earlier in the day, Gov. Ronald Reagan refused to grant clemency to Mitchell, scheduled for execution at 10 a.m. today.

Another last ditch appeal was made by state Senator George Moscone who asked U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for a stay on the grounds that a legislative hearing was scheduled to begin in Sacramento today on a bill to repeal the death penalty.

Brain Much More Fascinating

We're Wasting Money Chasing Dead Rocks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Man will never be able to reach the nearest star to earth during his space probes, Nobel Prize winner Sir John Eccles said Tuesday.

Sir John also said the prospect of finding life on other planets is very remote, and man won't reach them anyway.

The Australian-born research scientist made the comments while deploring the time and money spent on space research in comparison to that spent on "inner space" — workings of the human brain.

"Unlocking the secret of the brain's function is the last and greatest problem a man can solve. It reduces space travel to kid's games."

Sir John

wasting billions of dollars "chasing a lot of dead rocks, whizzing around in a void" man should be trying to know himself, control himself and progress to a better life.

The outspoken 1963 winner of the Nobel Prize for medicine also took a slap at present-day educational systems.

He said reviews and exams did not tell the full story of a student's ability.

"If I had my way, all exams would be conducted in a library, with all the necessary texts and reference books available," said Sir John.

Mix, Medals, Badges All Once Navy Beefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Victoria Liberal MP David Groos, a former naval captain, Tuesday derided the "overly conservative" attitude of some naval officers.

He said in the Commons defence debate that "you should have heard the uproar when sailors were allowed to mix a cola with their tot of rum."

Even Admiral Horatio Nelson would have liked the mix because he was a very progressive admiral.

Mr. Groos said many naval officers refused to wear the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal in 1941 because it was different.

There had been "great hostility" when Canada's shoulder flashes were introduced and many officers refused to put them on for many months.

Groos

But orders had come down to take them off.

The maple leaves used to be painted secretly on funnels at night and painted out by order in the daytime, Mr. Groos said.

Not until the war was over did the maple leaf become official on funnels.

Mr. Groos, former chairman of the Commons defence committee, said Parliament is creating a morale problem in the forces by talking so long about unification.

The "deadly pall of uncertainty" hanging over the forces should be removed. The services should be allowed to get on with their own route and timetable toward unification.

Mr. Groos said he is so strongly in favor of the bill he would return to the navy willingly tomorrow.

Oasis Crash Kills 35

ALGIERS (Reuters) — An Algerian DC-4 airliner crashed Tuesday, killing at least 24 persons, the Algerian news agency APS reported.

The agency said there were four survivors, three badly injured. The plane was on a routine weekly flight from Algiers to Tamanrasset in the Sahara. Oasis is an oasis township about five miles from Tamanrasset and the plane crashed as it was coming in to land.

Canadian Collieries' Shipping Terminal Goes Far Back

By JOHN MOORE

UNION BAY — Red flames against the night sky over Union Bay tell of the final chapter of what was once the most important industrial complex in the Comox Valley and a vital element in the economy of B.C.

Work crews of contractor M. D. Cole have been busy for months with the job of demolishing the structures and buildings of the old Canadian Collieries shipping terminal at Union Bay. The work now is in its final stages.

Comox Valley and chose the tree-shrouded bay where Hart Creek runs into Baynes Sound to be the shipping point for coal from the developing mines in the Cumberland area.

Shipments of coal started from the new port in 1889 and the name of Union Bay became known in shipping offices around the world.

The Dunsmuir family sold its interests to Canadian Collieries Ltd. In 1912 the Collieries harnessed the Puntledge River to supply electric power to the whole valley. During the war years coal from Union Bay was a vital element in the logistics of war transport.

But nothing is so constant as change, and with the development of other sources of power the coal industry faded and finally dwindled away.

Now it has come the full circle—from beginning to end.

Harmac Situation Worsens
As 13 May Be Suspended

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Apprehension about the firing of 13 men at Harmac was well founded.

Tuesday a spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel announced the men would be suspended from their job by next week in accordance with the request by the International Brotherhood of Pulp Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers union last week.

The men may reinstate themselves with the Pulp Sulphite union and keep their job, however.

"We take this step with regret effective next Tuesday. Since it is only the result of a jurisdictional dispute, it is totally beyond the control of the company," said the spokesman.

ONEROUS POSITION

"In the meantime the company will request the provincial department of labor to examine that clause in the contract which covers the point in question to determine whether the men must be suspended.

"The company is caught in an onerous position through no fault of its own, but solely due to rivalry between two unions," he added.

He referred to the company's desire to abide by the contract with the union, and the laws of the province, but added that the company had no wish to see the mill "go down" due to suspensions.

Without direct reference, his statement echoed the feelings of many connected with Harmac and the two-union dispute.

Members of both unions feel once the 13 men have been suspended, it will be a "foot in the door" for a request to suspend others.

Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada Local 8 has claimed to have over 90 per cent of the employees as members.

These members have not been paying dues to the Pulp Sulphite union, and therefore would be subject to suspensions on the same basis as the 13 men whose jobs now are in jeopardy.

OFFER REJECTED

The company in a letter to the Pulp Sulphite last week had stated it did not feel the clause in the contract had ever been intended for "mass layoffs," and it had been for this reason it offered to arbitrate, without any preliminary steps.

This offer had been flatly rejected by the Pulp Sulphite Monday.

Orville Braaten, president of the Canadian union, discredited the claims that suspensions were requested in order to protect the union shop clause in a statement Tuesday.

ALMOST CERTAIN

"There can be no doubt that International Pulp Sulphite Union under the direction of Pat O'Neal (western organizer for the Pulp Sulphite) wants to initiate a work stoppage at the Harmac mill."

If a closure of the mill should take place, an uncontrollable situation could very easily develop, he said.

"It now appears almost certain that the International were prepared to cause chaos and confusion throughout the entire province in the hopes of stopping the Canadian union from growing," said Mr. Braaten.

He maintained that the Pulp Sulphite had less than 100 members supporting it.

Eric Bodin, of the Canadian union, claimed at a recent court hearing, the Pulp Sulphite's books showed 150, and of these more than a dozen had recently been signed on by the Canadian union.

Mr. Braaten said more than 850 men could be counted on to support the Canadian union.

"Union security is not the issue," he said.

SHOP CLAUSES

"The issue is the legal right of men to democratic trade unions."

"Labor legislation in B.C. provides to change unions with no danger to union shop clauses. The worker shall not lose his job because they wish to change unions," he said.

He maintained the Pulp Sulphite was forcing its will of a minority upon that of the majority.

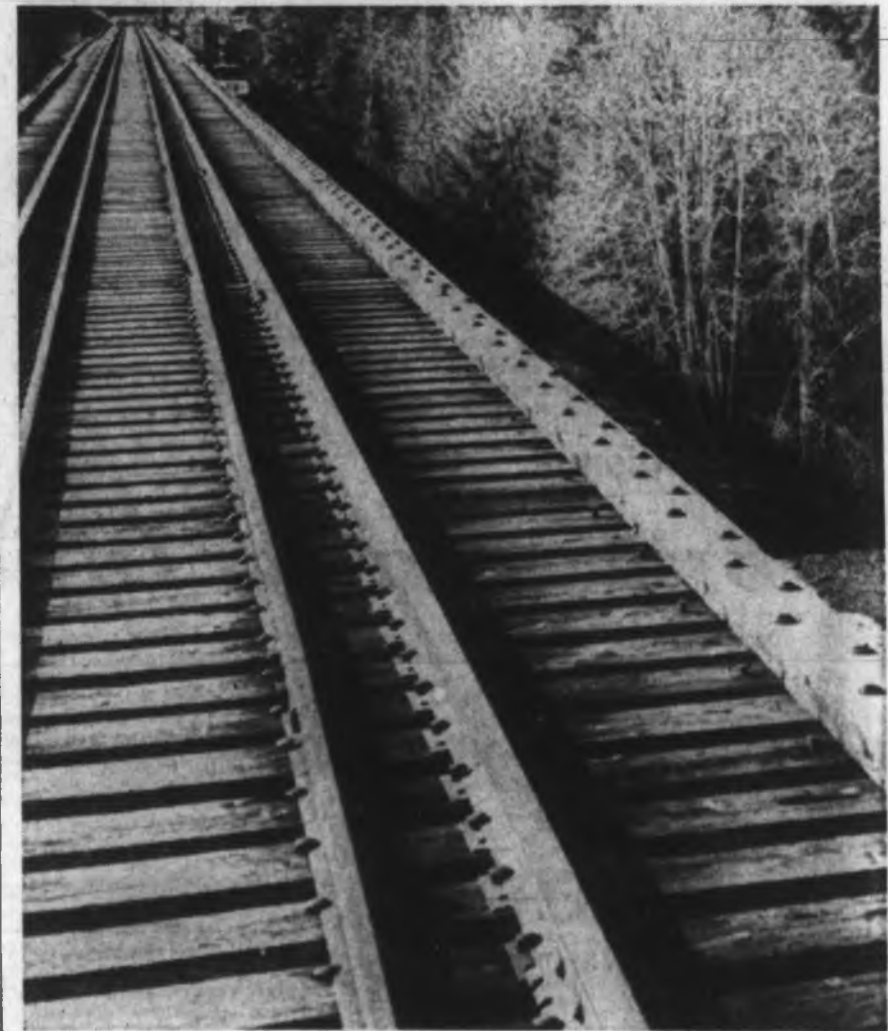

REAL DANGER

This, he felt, was the real danger.

"The solution is simple," he said.

He maintained the government should have a supervised vote by the men to determine which union they want.

"The government should act now," he stressed.

Dwarf Gets Its Revenge

This isn't a narrow-gauge railway but trestle across French Creek, between Parksville and Qualicum. French Creek is a mere dwarf compared to other Island rivers such as Cowichan,

Koksilah, Chemainus and Nanaimo, but its E & N crossing is many times as long due to valley it flows through at crossing point.—(Agnes Flett)

Tahsis

Tahsis Company President J. V. Christensen presented a citation to the chief from the National Fire Protection Association's recent annual international competition.

Tahsis sawmill, which employs 600 persons, was entered for the first time and ranked ninth out of 150 entries in the industrial division.

Pavilion
Too Costly

DUNCAN — Moving of the Indian of Canada Pavilion to the Cowichan Valley is unlikely because the cost is prohibitive.

City council Monday night was advised by a letter from the Indian Affairs Branch to move the pavilion after Expo '67 has closed would cost about $300,000 if it was shipped to a centre 150 miles away from Montreal.

In other business, council also:

● Granted permission to the Navy League of Canada, Cowichan branch, for a Sea Cadet parade, May 10; to the Cowichan Air Cadets to hold a tag day in September; to the Cowichan Corps Christi Indian Sports Committee to hold a parade May 12;

● Learned the organization of this year's Cowichan Timber Carnival to be held Aug. 12 is well under way. Council also may decide to contribute to the cost of a strong fence at Pioneer Park to prevent loss of revenue from non-paying spectators.

Intervention in Strike
Can't Be Confirmed

ZEBALLOS — Labor Minister Leslie Peterson was unavailable Tuesday to comment on a report that he had been asked to intervene in the Zeballos Iron Mines strike.

About 100 members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers went on strike Sunday over safety arrangements in the underground workings.

A union spokesman said four men have been seriously injured recently.

TO CALIFORNIA

Mr. Peterson left Victoria on Saturday for Los Angeles and is not expected back until April 22.

A mine official said Monday the strike had turned into a dispute between three unions.

Workers voted Monday to continue the strike until the safety angle had been cleared up and the issue of certification remedied.

The official bargaining agent for the men is the Three-Way Pact — Tunnel and Rock

Workers, Teamsters and Operating Engineers. They took over from Mine Mill, which is trying to get certification back.

Socreds Protesting

COURTENAY — The Comox Social Credit Association has sent a strongly-worded letter to the provincial government protesting the absence of standard safety equipment at the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railroad's Fraser Road crossing.

The crossing, two miles south of Courtenay, was the scene of an accident which claimed four lives. Mrs. Henry Jorgensen and her three children were killed when their car was involved in a collision with an E and N freight train, March 31.

The letter was forwarded through Dan Campbell, MLA for Comox constituency. The letter asks the government to take action which would have the railway company install warning lights and bells at the crossing.

The association noted the Fraser crossing is the only "main road" crossing on Vancouver Island without warning devices.

Motorists Must Adapt

Bus Rules Adopted

QUALICUM BEACH — Motorists and school children had to adapt to a new set of rules, when school buses made their rounds in this district Monday.

In the past, when school buses stopped to load or unload school children, with red bus lights flashing on front and rear, children have been instructed to remain on the side of the highway on which they were unloaded, until the bus had drawn away.

They were left to cross the road, if necessary, at their own discretion.

The policy which came into effect Monday included the following changes.

The bus, when arriving at a scheduled school bus stop, will indicate by application of the brake lights that it is stopping.

It will then stop directly in its own lane, and will not draw on to the shoulder of the road.

As the flashing lights on the front and rear of the bus are in operation, the children will proceed across the road at the front of the bus.

The lights will flash until the children are safely across the road, they will then cut off, and the bus will proceed.

While the lights are flashing, all vehicles approaching from either direction must stop. However, it is legal to pass a stopped school bus if the lights are not flashing.

Mountain Inspection Eye-Opener

By KLAUS MUEENTER

NORTH COWICHAN — Members of the North Cowichan council had an eye-opener when they went up Maple Mountain Tuesday morning.

Following several complaints about desecrating logging in that area, councilors and municipal public works superintendent Perry Ross were led by the municipality's consulting forester Frank Rainford through one of the most enchanting areas of North Cowichan.

The council's verdict — the charge of the park desecration by logging is exaggerated.

Walking along logging roads, climbing through thick underbrush and resting at a picturesque man-made lake, the problem was studied on the spot.

Forester Rainford said most of the charges from ratepayers arise because people are not aware Maple Mountain is not logged off but the method is selective patch logging which does not interfere with the beautiful scenery.

To underline his defence for the logging he brought up several points.

He said it opens up old logging roads creating access for hikers and riders; it creates forest land for reproduction and it earns the municipality revenue.

During the past three years 2,500,000 board feet of timber has been taken out.

Mr. Rainford stressed the establishment of four water holes on Maple Mountain serves two very important purposes — it gives game a drinking source during the hot season and it simplifies fire protection.

"People are ignorant of the fact the park has not been desecrated. Nature itself will replenish itself."

He said gates have been installed to protect woodlot operators and close the woods during the fire season.

In some cases wood thieves drove into the operations and cut up merchantable logs for fuel.

Council members, while touring the Maple Mountain area were told much of the unsightly mess along roads has either been caused by heavy snow or windfall or when the first roads were built many years ago. Everything will be cleaned up eventually.

Hemmingsen

Hemmingsen Rites Thursday

Woods Pioneer Dies

The man who introduced high lead logging to British Columbia, Mathias Hemmingsen, died in Victoria Monday. He was 90.

Mr. Hemmingsen introduced the technique while superintendent of the Victoria Lumbering and Manufacturing Co. in the early 1900s.

By 1912, all logging companies in B.C. were using the system. Mr. Hemmingsen was born in Wisconsin in 1876.

Later in life he helped his civil engineer father build logging roads, and gradually drifted into the logging business.

He won the reputation of being a top river driver and in 1906 he was sent by J. A. Humbird to superintend logging of the company's vast holdings on Vancouver Island, and its mill at Chemainus.

He was active in the logging business for all but five years during the depression, when he went mining.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret, at home; three sons, John in Vancouver; William in Victoria; Robert in Ottawa, and two daughters, Mrs. Hugh (Margaret) Beck and Mrs. Gordon (Marie) Tomlin, both of Victoria; 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mr. Hemmingsen was a 50-year member of No. 33 AF and AM lodge in Duncan.

Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros. chapel at 11 a.m. Thursday, with Very Rev. Dr. Hugh McLeod officiating.

Disaster Victims

Compensation
'Disgraceful'

PORT ALBERNI — Compensation provision for disaster victims is disgraceful, according to a union official.

"It is disgraceful that the inadequacies of the Workmen's Compensation Act are such that it requires the contributions of the public to provide for disaster victims," said Maurice Corbell.

He is secretary-treasurer of the Alberni and District Labor Council.

Mr. Corbell said the labor council sent a $100 cheque to the Natal disaster fund.

He urged other unions to follow suit.

Neither is the group completely happy about the decision of the provincial government to contribute $25,000 to the disaster fund, unless it plans to change previous policies.

"By making this contribution."

Magistrate Eric Winch said Monday he is seriously reconsidering his former attitude of allowing people to retain their licences for work, after their licences have been suspended.

William Thomas Winkler, 21, of 25 Stewart Avenue, pleaded guilty to driving without due care and attention on Sunday.

He said his job in a service station would require he have a valid driving licence. He was fined $35 and his licence was suspended for five months.

The $250 paid out by WCB for immediate maintenance to a widow was termed "totally inadequate."

Mr. Corbell said.

Human Waste Advocated For Fertilizer Conversion

The Esquimalt-Victoria Royal Anti-Smoke Committee Tuesday night suggested human effluent be used to keep parks green. In a letter to Saanich council, the committee — which also announced it has been renamed the Capital Region Pollution Control Committee — argued that sewage should be treated so it could be used as fertilizer. "What we get from the land we should return," said the letter, which also suggested all salvage sewage wastes as fertilizer but it was found uneconomical. In any case, the municipality still was confronted with problems of garbage disposal.

John D Stabs at Hellyer

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Tuesday the Liberal party had new-found love for senior military officers. "funds galore" for the 1963 election campaign and "one wonders what portion came from between 1957 and 1963, he facts of the 1959 decision to had conducted witchhunts in the cancel the Avro Arrow fighter Hellyer had stated he would save "millions and millions."

U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was straightening out Canada because we (the Conservatives) dared to stand," he added during the Commons debate on armed forces unification. Mr. Diefenbaker, entering the seven-day-old debate for the first time, said the Liberals are hell-bent on pushing through unification so that Defence Minister Hellyer can attend Expo with 400 green-apparelled men.

CLOSURE AGAIN?

The Liberals had brought in the maple leaf flag by closure and they intended to use the same method with unification. Mr. Diefenbaker quoted extensively from an article written in 1963 by Pierre Elliott Trudeau, who became justice minister in the Pearson cabinet last week.

He said Mr. Trudeau had referred to Mr. Pearson in 1963 as the "unfrocked priest of peace" because he had reversed Liberal policy on nuclear weapons.

ALLIED WITH U.S.

He quoted Mr. Trudeau as saying that the Liberals in the 1963 election were allied with the U.S. administration against the Diefenbaker government and that Mr. Pearson had betrayed the program of his party. "What idiots they are," Mr. Trudeau had written of the Liberals, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

Mr. Diefenbaker then turned on Mr. Hellyer, saying he has deceived Parliament, "put a zipper on the lip of anybody who said anything critical and removed it from those who joined in the Hallelujah chorus."

HELLYER HITS BACK

Mr. Hellyer had engaged in a campaign of denigration against people who dared to have opinions contrary to his own. The defence minister hit back as soon as Mr. Diefenbaker was finished. He said Mr. Diefenbaker had not given a single example of his alleged deception.

"Where is his sense of British justice? Where is his regard for the bill of rights?"

Mr. Hellyer charged that Mr. Diefenbaker acted against the advice of his chiefs of staff. Mr. Diefenbaker said he had their support.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Hellyer also had to apologize to Rear-Admiral William Landy more after condemning him as guilty of treachery.

Mr. Hellyer said unification will produce a force for the 1970s that will be able to meet any demand placed on it. "Canada, insofar as military organization is concerned, will be leading the world."

Canada Losing Face in France

OTTAWA (CP) — If ever a country has owed much to Canada, it is France, John Diefenbaker said Tuesday in the Commons. The blood of Canada had poured out at Vimy Ridge but no senior representative of France had attended the 50th anniversary observance of the battle Sunday.

"Surely there must be some reason for this loss of face of Canada in France," he said.

'Miracle' Needed To Hold Tax Line

Rough Year Feared For Victoria

By A. H. MURPHY

Announcement Friday by Education Minister Peterson that Victoria faces a 4.8-mill boost in the school rate just pointed up what City Hall officials have known for months—that it's going to be a rough tax year for Victoria.

Ever since they started wrestling with spending estimates, which exceed $15,000,000 this year, aldermen have known that it would be virtually impossible to hold the tax line at last year's 62.5 mills.

Just what will be added to the rate over and above the 4.8-mill increase for education was not known, but it was estimated Monday that it could amount to at least two mills, which would bring the total to around 70.

The education increase would bring the school rate to a total of 29.3 mills. Increases in teachers' salaries were said to be primarily responsible for the boost, although other costs were up as well.

City Treasurer James Bramley would not estimate the 1967 tax rate Monday, although he did concede it looked like a rough year.

Aldermen finished the first round of estimates-slashing two weeks ago. Next week, sitting in committee of the whole they will again go over the figures in the hope of paring more fat from the fiscal statement.

To that point, less than $500,000 had been cut. There will have to be some drastic knife work if the rate is to be held down to reasonable proportions.

North Saanich Merger

Sidney Plans Clear Picture

Sidney council voted Monday to give the taxpayers a clear picture of the ramifications of proposed amalgamation with North Saanich, before making any decision.

Ald. W. W. Gardner, selected by Mayor Arthur Freeman to meet with North Saanich Coun. George Aylard to discuss the details of such a merger, remained unenthusiastic.

Gas Attack Date Marked April 23

The 50th anniversary of the gas attack at the battle of St. Julian in 1915 will be celebrated by the Red Chevron Association of Vancouver Island in the Army, Navy and Air Force auditorium at 6 p.m. April 23.

"It puts me on the spot," he said of his selection. "I am strictly neutral at the moment."

"We all have to be," Mayor Freeman answered. "If we are to serve the public as elected representatives."

"Would this have to be by referendum?" Ald. Gardner asked.

The mayor said, "We should have some indication from the people, whether they want a referendum or not."

Ald. Gardner asked if any council members had seen Sunday's Colonist, in which a comparison of operating costs in various communities showed Sidney a bad light.

"That report was not entirely accurate, nor was it a full

By JOHN MATTERS

Only something 'equivalent to a miracle' would save Saanich ratepayers from a tax increase this year.

That was the indication Monday after council members and municipal officials had a chance to reflect on a 4.8-mill increase in local school taxation announced last week by Education Minister Peterson.

"It is staggering," said comptroller-treasurer John Tribe. "It is one of the largest increases I have seen in years."

TWO-WEEK WAIT

However, he felt that councils shouldn't cut back on their own programs to accommodate school costs.

Saanich home-owners will have to wait about two weeks before they find out for certain if their taxes are going up or down.

The first of three nights of budget discussions is scheduled for April 24. That's when council members will slash or add to the $7,430,000 budget which has been proposed.

RECREATION ADDED

The Saanich budget last year was $7,400,000. The combined general and special needs resulted in a mill rate of 50.3 in the urban area and 53.2 in the rural area, north of Royal Oak, which is in another school district.

In addition to higher costs in almost every department of municipal government, ratepayers this year will start paying for the publicly-owned recreation facilities they approved in a referendum last month.

MORE FIREMEN

This year's slice of the $1,250,000 scheme is $98,000, equivalent to one mill.

Another load on the taxpayer will be the increase expected to be made in the fire department staff. Fire Chief Joseph Sutherland has recommended an addition of 24 men to the 56-member department but Coun. Alan Newberry, chairman of council's fire committee will suggest this be cut to 12.

MAGIC WANDS

Even if Coun. Newberry's suggestion is accepted, it will mean Saanich will spend $75,000 more than last year on fire protection.

"It seems that if we're going to hold the line we'll not only need sharp blades but magic wands," said one member of council.

Streetlight Expense On Trial

Objectors have a month in which to protest a $48,810 street-lighting scheme which has been announced by Saanich.

The lights will be installed as local improvements, with residents of the area paying a special rate of 7.4 cents per foot frontage in 10 annual instalments.

The municipality's share of the program would be $11,743.

The areas scheduled for street lighting include Douglas Street between Carey and Haynes, Carey between Tait and Marigold and a district bounded by Kent, Carey, Agnes and Douglas, with a few exceptions.

Well, no one can say the Greater Victoria Centennial Society didn't try.

Chock-full of goodwill and the old centennial spirit, the society decided a few weeks ago it would be a nice thing if all the members of all the municipal councils were to get together in a sort of a big love feast.

Poor Condition

Crash Hurts Two

Two men are in poor condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after the van in which they were travelling was involved in a collision at Trans-Canada Highway and Millstream Road Sunday night.

Walter Jatkowski, 2404 Cook, received severe head injuries and Victor Martin, 730 Russell, suffered back injuries.

The van, driven by Mr. Jatkowski, was crossing the highway at Millstream when it was in collision with a car driven by Gordon Drier of 720 Newberry.

Mr. Drier received minor injuries.

An elderly couple involved in a two-car crash at Fort and Vancouver Saturday night are in fair condition. Mrs. Barbara Holden, 70, 1005 Pakington, suffered head injuries and a broken wrist and her husband, David, 80, also suffered head injuries.

A 12-year-old cyclist, Stephen Henderson, 2023 Belmont, received lacerations to a hand and ankle Sunday afternoon when he fell in front of a car driven by James Gordon, 1209 Doncaster, on Forbes.

Keith Humphries, 16, 1790 Adams, fractured his left leg Saturday when he ran into a car being driven by Kenneth Kidd, 1615 Belmont, on Blanchard at Fort.

Tolerance Urged By De Roo

It is not honest to pretend that there is a union among the churches that does not exist, Most Rev. Remi J. De Roo, Roman Catholic bishop of Victoria, said Monday.

Bishop De Roo has just returned from a conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Ottawa.

He said Monday the churches should not pretend to a union they didn't have.

"No one has a monopoly on truth and fraternity," he said, adding it was time to accept the fact that various religions are different and their differences should be respected.

Discussing the position of the church on divorce, he suggested better preparation for marriage, and more concern over the reckless way some young people went into marriage, with divorce following.

"There has not been sufficient attention paid to the family itself as an institution in society," he said.

Friday Films Stress Safety

Saanich community organizations, with the co-operation of the police department, will offer a public showing of two films on traffic safety, Mechanized Death and Fatal Meeting, at 8 p.m. Friday in the Saanich Agricultural Hall.

Golf, Picnic Find No Response

Centennial Love Feast Fails

It was to take the form of a golf tournament and everybody would be friendly and chummy and get to know everybody else and out of it all could come nothing but good.

The centennial office staff got busy and called all the councillors and aldermen and officials—and met with massive indifference.

It was suggested Monday that perhaps an old-fashioned picnic might be the thing to stimulate goodwill and that sort of thing.

Chairman Arthur Mebs thought it a capital idea.

But this was a little too much—even for members of his own committee.

"What are we trying to do—promote something that nobody wants?" asked Mrs. Irene Warren.

"I don't like the idea—golf or picnic. I don't think it's our function to go around spreading goodwill," said Allan Kent.

"I think I would be laughed out of the office if I suggested it," said the office worker who made the original calls about the golf tournament.

Still radiating cheer and goodwill, but a little crestfallen, Chairman Mebs gave up.

"I guess we'd better scrub the whole idea," he said.

Increased Costs, Increased Tax?

NANAIMO — Increasing costs, decreasing provincial school grants, and a continuous growth of the city could lead to increased taxes.

The proposed 1967 city budget, read by city council, has indicated this.

A one-mill increase was necessitated by the city's support of the equipment purchases for the hospital.

School grants by the provincial government may have been reduced almost as much as the increase of the home-owner grant, observed Ald. Jack Parker.

SCHOOL BOOST

"If those reports are correct this will have the effect of increasing the local school levy still further," he said.

He said unless the $500,000 capital bylaw bonds are marketed, a tax increase for 1968 may be needed.

Additional revenue would be needed for purchase of property to improve road patterns, and a full-time planning consultant would further increase the need for money in the future.

AUDITORIUM

An auditorium to aid the cultural growth of the city, and to serve as an attraction to conventions, is the next major construction that should be undertaken by the city, he observed.

School costs were not finalized, but estimates indicate the school levy at 25.2 mills.

A recommendation by Oliver and Associates in their report on the engineering department has been instituted, resulting in increased charges for use of city-owned equipment, which will defray costs for preventative maintenance.

STORM DRAINS

Ald. Ted Barsby noted the streets and storm drains had been apportioned about 10 per cent of the total budget.

"It will do what we promised the people when the bylaw was put before them," he said.

Although the amount was short of what would be needed to do a full scale job, he felt progress would still be significant.

WITH PLEASURE

Ald. Peter McLoughlin noted with pleasure an increase in allowance for sidewalks.

He also observed the fire chief's car, sorely in need of replacement for some time, will be replaced.

A letter from Mrs. G. E. Halkett commended the city for its beginning of underground wiring in the city.

"At least 40 years behind the civilized world," was her comment.

Ald. Barsby explained that costs were prohibitive for this practice to be instituted throughout the city.

"Until we can afford it, we'll have to put up with it (overhead lines)."

Nanaimo Marine Dealers Association submitted a list of grievances to council.

The members asked council to approach the minister of transport on their behalf, to have "exorbitant" water lease rental rates reduced.

They felt that if the rates were to continue, this would result in Newcastle Channel becoming a degenerated area, as businesses could not operate at a profit.

Disaster Softened

CUMBERLAND — Aid for the families of coal miners killed last week in Natal is to come from another town which has known the crippling disaster and shock of mine tragedy.

Although Cumberland is no longer a coal mining community, its older residents remember well the hard work in the mines and the ever-present danger.

They have set up two collection agencies where people may leave donations. The idea came from druggist Pete Chandler.

Regional District Nearer

By KLAUS MUENTER

NORTH COWICHAN — A regional district in this area may be a reality soon.

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton says regional hospital districts are already being proposed by the provincial government and here it would include school districts 65 (Cowichan), 66 (Lake Cowichan) and 67 (Ladysmith).

"I understand it will be declared soon and I am strongly in favor."

"A regional district can be brought about much quicker than any form of municipal amalgamation and it will mean a minimum of interference to those unorganized areas which do not wish to be incorporated."

"Hospital districts can easily be used for other functions by agreement of the member areas."

"This is a positive approach to the regional area problem."

In a regional district the reeve could start immediately to solve the Salsair fire protection request through this method.

He said regional planning would be one of the most important things.

"Full amalgamation has much to be commended but it is slow to be brought about."

"A regional district could be working within a few months."

Mayor Jack Dobson told a delegation from the Centennial Heights subdivision at Monday night's city council meeting he also is in favor of a regional district and the solution to this area's recreational problem could be answered through a regional district.

In reference to a city of Duncan proposal to extend its boundaries into unorganized area adjacent to the city, Reeve Morton remarked, "I cannot see any reason at all why we should not support this move."

In reply to a query whether or not he would support a Duncan

Teen Town hall, estimated at between $30,000 and $60,000, the reeve noted, "I have always supported the project in general but have not seen any detailed plans or costs."

Festival Brings Clubs Together

NANAIMO — If no other good comes from a drama festival, it is worth while if it promotes an exchange of ideas.

This year, for the first time in many, two clubs have agreed to function together in a limited way.

St. Matthias' Players of Victoria and Nanaimo Theatre Group will produce an evening of entertainment this Friday in Victoria.

Keith Shadforth, Les Dickson, and director Roger Desprez will take their production of Dock Brief to Victoria for a studio evening.

Even though this is a non-profit venture, more a rehearsal than a production, the evening has been planned for its entertainment content.

An orchestra with a feature singer will open the program, it is understood, and the play will follow.

CAMPBELL RIVER — John Howard Society of Vancouver Island will hold its annual meeting here May 6, at Discovery Inn, Attorney-General Robert Bonner, will speak to a luncheon. Then the group will visit a B.C. Correctional Camp at Sayward Forest.

DUNCAN — Saraya, a two-year-old cow, was champion milk and butterfat producer during one lactation period in the Cowichan Herd Improvement area. The cow is owned by G. A. Van Jaarsveld, who received a feed price. Dairy operator Albert Baumgart's herd was highest herd average.

POLICE AIM TEAR GAS

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (Reuters) — Students protesting a Western Hemisphere summit conference here barricaded themselves in Montevideo University Tuesday night as police charged them, firing into the air and carrying tear gas grenades.

Some 400 students hurled stones at police, who were reinforced by truckloads of helmeted military police. They surrounded the university — which local law forbids them to enter.

THREE-DAY MEET

The clashes began earlier Tuesday evening as President Johnson and 10 Latin American heads of state arrived for the first full-scale summit meeting of Western Hemisphere leaders. They joined six other leaders already in the resort of Punta del Este, 50 miles from the capital of Montevideo. In all, 19 heads of state were expected for the three-day summit.

Police in riot trucks moved in when the demonstrations started Tuesday morning. Students hurled stones while the police replied with tear gas and night-stick charges. Three demonstrators were reported injured.

What Delay?

Home Grant List At 2,000 Already

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

Two thousand prospective home buyers have already applied for B.C.'s new $500 grant, deputy finance minister G. S. Bryson said Tuesday.

And the government has sent out 24,000 application forms, said Mr. Bryson in conversation with Premier Bennett.

The premier invited a press conference to listen in on a telephone conversation with Mr. Bryson after it was suggested that payment of the home-acquisition grants was being delayed.

The last session of the legislature passed a bill approving payment of $500 to first-time buyers of homes within B.C. The legislation is retroactive to April 1, 1966.

"The response has been a lot more than I figured," Mr. Bryson told the premier.

Mr. Bryson said the government was being processed.

Inquiries addressed to Victoria government offices have been averaging 1,000 a day since the legislation was passed, he said.

"The first cheques will be going out in a week," said Mr. Bryson. He said there would be about 100 in the initial mailing.

One reason they aren't going out faster is that each application must be checked through the land registry office, he added.

OSLO (Reuters) — Norwegian security police are on the trail of a spy ring suspected of transmitting military secrets to Russia for several years from the strategically important NATO area of northern Norway, press reports said Tuesday.

Condemned Killer Tries To Cheat Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI) — The condemned slayer of a policeman made an apparent suicide attempt Tuesday, 21 hours before he was scheduled to become the first criminal executed in the United States for more than a year.

The condemned man had told her, "Mama, maybe it's too late."

A prison spokesman said Mitchell had apparently hidden the razor blade in his cell.

Earlier in the day, Gov. Ronald Reagan refused to grant clemency to Mitchell, scheduled for execution at 10 a.m. today.

Another last ditch appeal was made by state Senator George Moscone who asked U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas for a stay on the grounds that a legislative hearing was scheduled to begin in Sacramento today on a bill to repeal the death penalty.

That payment of the home-acquisition grants was being delayed.

The Australian-born research scientist made the comments while deploring the time and money spent on space research in comparison to that spent on "inner space" — workings of the human brain.

"Unlocking the secret of the brain's function is the last and greatest problem a man can solve. It reduces space travel to kid's games."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Man will never be able to reach the nearest star to earth during his space probes, Nobel Prize winner Sir John Eccles said Tuesday.

Sir John also said the prospect of finding life on other planets is very remote, and man won't reach them anyway.

OTTAWA (CP) — Bower Featherstone was found guilty Tuesday of one charge under the Official Secrets Act, and acquitted on a second charge.

The jury of 11 men and one woman found the 28-year-old government lithographer guilty of a charge of obtaining two copies of a confidential navy chart that might be useful to Soviet submarines.

He was found not guilty of retaining the two charts for a purpose prejudicial to the safety of the state between Feb. 13 and Oct. 25 last year.

SENTENCE APRIL 14

Judge Peter Macdonald remanded Featherstone in custody until April 24 at 10 a.m. for sentencing. The conviction carries a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison.

The jury returned to the Carleton County courtroom at 4 p.m. after deliberating for three hours and 10 minutes at the end of a six-day trial.

The judge told the jury that in his opinion they had reached the proper conclusion.

CLARIFICATION

The jury earlier interrupted deliberation after an hour and 40 minutes to ask Judge Macdonald to clarify the section of the Official Secrets Act referring to "a purpose prejudicial to the safety of the state."

The judge said the act puts the onus on the accused to show that he had an innocent purpose if and when he kept a secret government document.

He said that the normal onus on the Crown to prove an offence is reversed in the Official Secrets Act in connection with the purpose of the accused.

NOT CROWN'S JOB
There was no obligation for the Crown to prove that Featherstone acted with an illegal purpose when he retained two copies of a confidential navy chart printed in the mapping branch of the energy department where he was employed.

The jury foreman said this was the point that confused the jurors.

The Official Secrets Act was passed after the outbreak of the Second World War in 1939 to protect the federal government against espionage. Each conviction under the act carries a maximum penalty of 14 years in prison.

Mr. Hellyer intervened to say that if Mr. Nugent repeats that debate on the tried and true system developed by Adolf Hitler of the big lie, and since he is so adept at the practice of this system, I developed a sort of grudging admiration for the amount of skill he brought to bear in using the system.

Mr. Hellyer: I do not think I should allow that slur to go unchallenged. I am going to tell my honorable friend (Mr. Nugent) that if he ever says that outside the House of Commons I will have him prove it before a court of law.

Mr. Nugent: In case the minister is interested, tomorrow I will be speaking in Manitoba. I will be back here on Thursday and I will repeat that I would be glad to meet the minister in a court of law.

Hankey, Pankey Again

FALLBROOK, Calif. (LAT) — For skeptics who insist that there's too much hanky-panky in politics, there's conclusive evidence in next Tuesday's school board elections here.

Among the incumbents seeking re-election are John A. Hankey and Robert H. Pankey.

Oasis Crash Kills 35

ALGIERIA (Reuters) — An Algerian DC-4 airliner crashed at Ouargla in Algeria Tuesday, killing at least 35 persons, the Algerian news agency APS reported.

The plane was on a routine weekly flight from Algiers to Tamanrasset in the Sahara. Ouargla is an oasis township about five miles from Tamanrasset and the plane crashed as it was coming in to land.

Mix, Medals, Badges All Once Navy Beefs

OTTAWA (CP) — Victoria Liberal MP David Groos, a former naval captain, Tuesday derided the "overly conservative" attitude of some naval officers.

He said in the Commons defence debate that "you should have heard the uproar when sailors were allowed to mix a cola with their tot of rum."

Even Admiral Horatio Nelson would have liked the mix because he was a very progressive admiral.

Mr. Groos said many naval officers refused to wear the Canadian Volunteer Service Medal in 1941 because it was different.

There had been "great hostility" when Canada's warships were introduced and many officers refused to put them on for many months.

Groos

But orders had come down to take them off.

The maple leaves used to be painted secretly on funnels at night and painted out by order in the daytime, Mr. Groos said.

Not until the war was over did the maple leaf become official on funnels.

Mr. Groos, former chairman of the Commons defence committee, said Parliament is creating a morale problem in the forces by talking so long about unification.

The "deadly pall of uncertainty" hanging over the forces should be removed. The services should be allowed to get on with their own route and timetable toward unification.

Mr. Groos said he is so strongly in favor of the bill he would return to the navy willingly tomorrow.

Mrs. Vanier Council First

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Pauline Vanier was sworn in Tuesday as a member of the Privy Council of Canada on the eve of her departure from the capital.

The honor, which was the first ever to be conferred on a Canadian woman other than cabinet members, was made to the wife of the late Governor-General George Vanier.

"Madame Vanier has a place in the hearts of all Canadians equalled only by that of her late husband," Prime Minister Pearson said in making the announcement. "She was one half of a perfect partnership that served all Canadians."
